SC TO HEAR CHALLENGE TO QUOTA BEYOND 10-YR CAP FOR SC/STs IN LS

The SC will hear pleas questioning constitutional validity of extending reservation beyond the 10 years to SCs and STs in Lok Sabha and assemblies

FIVE-JUDGE BENCH TO HEAR FROM NOVEMBER 21

A five-judge Constitution bench set November 21 to start hearing the plea. The validity of the 104th amendment of the Constitution in 2019 shall be determined to the extent that it applies to the SCs and STs. The amendment had extended the SC/ST quota by 10 years and specified 2030 as the end-year for the provision of reservation. The Centre defended its decision

RIGHT TO CHOICE, EQUALITY VIOLATED: PLEA

- The bench comprises Chief Justice of India D Y Chandrachud and justices A S Bopanna, M M Sundresh, J B Pardiwala and Manoj Misra
- The petitioner argued that grant of relentless and repeated extension to certain communities resulted in depriving the electorate of their right to choice in candidates and was violative of the right to equality

Union home minister Amit Shah (L) and Congress leader Sonia Gandhi participating in the debate on the Women's Reservation Bill in the Lok Sabha on Wednesday | PTI

454 ayes. 2 nays. Women's bill gets LS stamp. RS debate today

60 members of the Lok Sabha participate in eight-hour-long debate, 27 of them women

PREETHA NAIR @New Delhi

THE Lok Sabha on Wednesday made history by passing the Women's Reservation Bill by an overwhelming majority of 454 votes. Only two MPs voted against the bill that seeks to reserve one-third of seats for women in Parliament and all state assemblies.

While supporting the bill, the Opposition made a strong pitch for extending the quota to the Other Backward Classes (OBCs) and the immediate implementation of the legislation in the upcoming 2024 elections. Prime Minister Narendra Modi was present during voting.

"The proposal has been passed with more than two-thirds majority of the members present in the House," announced Speaker Om Birla after the vote. The bill will now go to the Rajya Sabha. Also, at least half of state assemblies have to ratify it to become law.

The bill will come into force only after the delimitation exercise which will be preceded by the decadal Census.

Several women Parliamentarians participated in the eight-hour-long debate, which saw spirited exchanges from both camps. Initiating the debate, Congress leader Sonia Gandhi made a strong pitch for caste census and bringing OBC women in the ambit of the law. She also urged the government to implement the quota immediately as any delay would be "gross injustice" to women.

Dispelling the concerns of the Opposition, Union home minister Amit Shah said the next government will conduct the Census and the delimitation exercise immediately after the elections and set in motion the process of reservation.

Hinting that the bill will become a reality after 2029, Shah asserted that the BJP has given more representation to the OBCs than those claiming to speak for them. "Nearly 29% or 85 BJP MPs, 29 Union ministers, and 365 of its 1,358 MLAs, which is over 27%, are from the OBC category, " Shah said.

Several Opposition leaders including DMK's Kanimozhi, TMC's Mahua Moitra, NCP's Supriya Sule and others demanded the immediate rollout of the reservation. While Supriya Sule termed the legislation a "post-dated cheque", Akali Dal's Harsimrat Badal targeted the BJP over its leaders being booked for crimes against women.

On the demand for immediate implementation, Shah said it could lead to allegations of partiality. He said that the matter was best left to the delimitation commission, which would carry out the exercise with transparency. Shah said the delimitation panel was an appropriate forum as it would be chaired by a retired Supreme Court judge and have representation from political parties.

AIMIM leader Asaduddin Owaisi was the lone MP who spoke against the bill saying it would provide quota only to "upper caste women" and exclude OBC and Muslims who have little representation in Parliament. AIMIM has two members in the Lok Sabha.

It's a big step. It's not a small step... There is one thing in my view that makes this bill incomplete. I would like to have seen the OBC reservation included in this bill

Indians not safe in Canada, hate crimes up, says MEA

YESHI SELI @New Delhi

STEPPING up its diplomatic offensive against Canada, India on Wednesday issued an advisory for its citizens living in Canada and those planning to travel there "to exercise utmost caution". The strongly worded communique came a day after India expelled a senior Canadian diplomat in a tit-for-tat move and rubbished Canada's prime minister Justin Trudeau's charge that Indian agents killed Canada-based Khalistani terrorist Hardeep Singh Nijjar.

"In view of growing anti-India activities and politically condoned hate crimes and criminal violence in Canada, all Indian nationals there and those contemplating travel are urged to exercise utmost caution," read a statement by the Ministry of External Affairs.

The advisory cautioned that there has been a significant rise in threats targeting Indian diplomats as well as the Indian community. "Indian nationals are therefore advised to avoid travelling to regions and potential venues in Canada that have seen such incidents," the statement said, asking Indian workers and students to register with the High Commission of India in Ottawa or the Consulate General of India in Toronto and Vancouver.

The diplomatic row, however, will not affect the military ties between the two countries. Canada's Deputy Army Chief Major General Peter Scott is scheduled to attend a defence conclave in Delhi next week. Explaining the need to treat political stand-offs in isolation, Major General Abhinaya Rai, additional director general, strategic planning, pointed out that India still engages with China despite differences.

Reacting cautiously to the India-Canada face-off, US Ambassador to India Eric Garcetti said both countries are close friends of the US. "Canada is an ally, a dear friend, trading partner and happens to share our border. Moments like this don't define our relationship but slow down the progress," he said in New Delhi.

BBP REPORT WARNS OF VIRUS OUTBREAK IN FORESTS

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

THE death of seven leopard cubs in Bannerghatta Biological Park (BBP) due to Feline Panleukopenia Virus (FPV) has become a cause for concern among veterinarians and experts. They now fear that the virus may infect domestic and wildcats.

Officials of the Park on Wednesday submitted a report to the Zoo Authority of Karnataka (ZAK) and to the Principal Chief Conservator of Forests (Wildlife) explaining the reasons for the death of cubs and the action taken by them.

BBP Executive Director AV Surya Sen said that they submitted a detailed report to the Central Zoo Authority of India, ZAK, and to the PCCF to initiate action.

A veterinarian with ZAK said, "It is a matter of concern. There is an outbreak of FPV. There are many instances of death of wildcats in zoos across India. We have spoken to our counterparts in other states and have learnt about it. We have information on deaths of domestic cats. So, we request pet owners to keep a thorough health record of their pets."

The cubs are vulnerable as their immune system is weak. However, its occurrence in adults cannot be ruled out. Thus, directions have been issued for a thorough health check up of all the felines

— ZAK official

The ZAK official said the cubs are vulnerable as their immune system is weak. However, its occurrence in adults cannot be ruled out. Thus, directions have been issued for a thorough health check up of all the felines. The viral infection has also become a cause for concern among forest officials.

A senior official said the death of tiger cubs in TN could be because of this virus. Only a postmortem will confirm the reasons. Subhash Malkhade, PCCF, Wildlife, said he will study the report. "The situation is under control now in BBP," he added.

Sewage enters houses at Yelachenahalli ward in Bengaluru | EXPRESS

BWSSB messes up drain, sewage floods houses

MOHAMMED YACOOB @Bengaluru

WHENEVER it rains, sewage enters at least a dozen houses at Ramakrishna Nagar and Elliyas Nagar (Yelachenahalli ward) in South Bengaluru.

The alleged negligence on the part of Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board (BWSSB) is the reason for this.

Repeated complaints to BWSSB from residents and social activists have gone in vain. The reason for this problem is the BWSSB has not completed the sewage link line work connecting Gangadhar Nagar and Yelachenahalli. Because of this, sewage enters the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) stormwater drain which is only 1.5 metres wide. The BWSSB has to lay 40 metres of sewage pipeline to complete the link line.

The incomplete sewage line and the line not being extended further to connect a sub-sewage line at Yelachenahalli allows sewage to flow into the stormwater drain. When it rains, sewage from the SWD overflows and runs down, flooding homes that are in low-lying areas.

BBMP Executive Engineer (SWD) Sri Lakshmi confirmed sewage entering the 1.5-metre drain near Gangadhar Nagar. "As we have taken up work on the 40-foot road at Fayazabad, the left side of the road is for the BWSSB to lay the sewage line. Our stormwater drain network is part of CM's Nagarothana grant of Rs 3 crore earmarked in 2022. If the stormwater drain network is free from sewage, the flooding of homes can be avoided," she said. Audit to clear encroachments around B'luru

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

IN a major move to recover government lands from land-grabbers in and around Bengaluru, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah has instructed the Principal Secretary, Revenue Department, to conduct an audit of lands as resorts have come up on 75,000 acres of encroached land and private guesthouses on around 6,000 acres.

The CM's instruction comes after former MLC and KPCC spokesperson Ramesh Babu wrote to him in this regard on September 19.

Babu submitted some documents related to the alleged encroachment of government land within a radius of 100 km from Bengaluru city.

"We are aware of the rise in the prices of revenue land, especially in and around Bengaluru. Some people are encroaching upon government lands and getting title deeds for the same by creating and producing fake documents. The reports of the House Committee headed by former MLA AT Ramaswamy and V Balasubramananyan committee had mentioned many cases of land grabbing," Babu stated in his letter.

More than 1,000 resorts and homestays have come up in and around Bengaluru city. "If the government clears the encroachment after an audit and disposes of such lands through auction, it will earn crores of rupees as revenue," he stated in his letter.

Will approach SC for stay on CWMA order on water release, says Siddu

Chief Minister Siddaramiah and Deputy CM DK Shivakumar at a meeting with all-party MPs on the Cauery issue in New Delhi on Wednesday | EXPRESS

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah and his deputy DK Shivakumar on Wednesday held a meeting with all-party MPs, including ministers from the State, in New Delhi on releasing Cauvery water to Tamil Nadu.

After the meeting, Siddaramaiah told reporters that they sought the Prime Minister's intervention as he has the prerogative to summon representatives from both states to discuss the issue. "In the meantime, we will approach the Supreme Court to stay the CWMA's order to release water to TN," the CM said.

"It is not an issue of not releasing water. In fact, we have no sufficient water in our dams. To protect the Kannada land, water, language and culture, we should set aside party politics and stand united. We need 33 tmcft of water for drinking purpose, 70 tmcft to protect the standing crops, and 3 tmcft for use by industries. In all, the State needs 106 tmcft of water. But we have only 53 tmcft of water in our dams," Siddaramaiah said.

He said Karnataka did not receive good rainfall after August, whereas Tamil Nadu received it even after August. "So, we are facing more trouble. This situation has been ably argued before CWMA by our legal team, experts and officials," he added.

According to the Supreme Court order, the state has to release 108.4 tmcft of water to TN. It could release only 39.8 tmcft due to distress. In the absence of a distress formula, the dispute between the two states continues.

OMG! Zero in NEET-PG entrance no bar for higher edu seat

KAVITA BAJELI DATT @New Delhi

THE Medical Counselling Committee on Wednesday said it has slashed the qualifying percentile for NEET-PG 2023 to zero across all categories. The decision was taken following a recommendation by the Union health ministry.

So, now all those who appeared for NEET-PG entrance will be eligible to participate in counselling. The Federation of Resident Doctors' Association said a large number of students will now fill up the seats, which otherwise went vacant.

"Over the past years, we have witnessed a persistent challenge in the form of vacant seats in medical institutions across the nation even after multiple rounds of counselling for NEET-PG," according to the Federation of Resident Doctors' Association.

Interview beckons for all from top to bottom rank

A fresh registration process and choice filling for round-three of postgraduate counselling will be reopened for candidates who have become eligible after the reduction of percentile

However, the move ignited fierce debate among the medical associations and practitioners. While some hailed it, others decried it, saying that it will bring down the quality of future doctors.

Earlier, many medical associations had demanded that the cut-off be reduced to accommodate NEET-PG aspirants, as over 8,000 clinical and non-clinical seats in government and non-government colleges were vacant across the country.

Dr Lakshya Mittal of United Doctors Front Association who had petitioned the government on behalf of Persons with Disabilities, who could not participate in the ongoing NEET-PG counselling session due to high cut-off, said it was a "big victory" for NEET aspirants.

FAIMA (Federation of All India Medical Association) Doctors Association chairman Dr Rohan Krishnan said the decision will "kill merit". "This is a very worrying trend," he told this paper.

He said reducing the cut-off to zero is making a mockery of medical education in India and bringing down the healthcare standard in the country. "This will promote corruption and high fees in private medical colleges," he said. Many doctors took to social media to raise objections to the cut-off mark.

Dr Deepak Krishnamurthy, senior interventional cardiologist in Sakra World Hospital, Bengaluru, posted on X (formerly Twitter), "Zero percentile is the new cut-off !. It is high time patients ask their treating doctors about their academic performance and how they got into their MBBS, PG and super specialty."

Final notification on delimitation coming soon; 225 wards on anvil

With this, the govt will be just a few steps away from holding elections to BBMP Council

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Karnataka government will soon issue the final notification for delimitation of wards in Bengaluru, from the existing 198 to 225. This is after the 12-week deadline issued by the Karnataka High Court came to an end on September 18, and so did the time for sending objections to the draft notification.

Sources in the urban development department said they are ready with the final notification to increase the number of wards from 198 to 225 in Bruhat Bengalur Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) limits, and the state government will issue it any time soon. With this exercise, the government is just a few steps away from holding elections to the BBMP Council whose term ended on September 10, 2020. Since then, there has been no elected body in the Palike.

"The 3000-plus objections were disposed of. Some minor alterations were done, based on recommendations and suggestions from the public," said a UDD official.

On August 4, 2023, the government had issued a fresh notification with regard to delimitation of 225 wards by rejecting the BJP government's proposal for 243 wards. The government notification stated that delimitation was done based on the 2011 census, and accordingly, each ward will have a population of roughly 37,257. According to UDD sources, the government has made minor changes, keeping the objections in mind.

As per the draft notification issued on August 18, the four assembly constituencies of KR Puram, Bommanahalli, Dasarahalli and RR Nagar will have 12 wards each. Similarly, the number of wards recommended was from the existing 7-10 at Byatarayanapura, 4-5 seats at Yelahanka and 7-8 wards in Mahalakshmi Layout. Jayanagar and Malleswaram were recommended for 6 from 7 wards. In Vijayanagar and BTM Layout assemblies, it was recommended to increase the wards from 8 to 9.

The move is considered a step closer to holding the municipality polls at the earliest. Sources close to Deputy CM DK Shivakumar said the idea was to hold elections for Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike in December.

Residents staying near Benniganahalli Metro Station on Old Madras Road are at the receiving end as people relieve themselves in the open

Apartment wall turns loo after Metro station replaces toilets

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

THE removal of two public toilet complexes to facilitate construction of Benniganahalli Metro Station, which figures on the upcoming KR Pura-Baiyappanahalli line to be launched shortly, has impacted residents of a nearby apartment. The stench and ungainly sight of people openly relieving themselves behind the compound wall have forced them to permanently shut their windows and balconies facing the station.

Nearly 500 residents live at Royal Heritage Apartments, which borders Benniganahalli Metro Station on Old Madras Road.

Saji Verghese, an apartment owner, told TNIE, "The comfort stations on either side of the present Benniganahalli station were used by pedestrians as well as long-distance travellers who alight by the thousands throughout the day. Now they are using the vacant space in front of the station and our apartment complex wall, which stinks unbearably. Most of residents keep their balconies shut to avoid the sights and stench."

Srikanth Bhaskar, a resident on the third floor, said, "It's a very embarrassing sight for all of us. I don't even tell guests we have a balcony as they would step out to enjoy some fresh air. When the toilets were there, drivers, conductors and bus passengers would use them. Now, they use our compound wall. We cannot blame them, the government needs to provide toilets."

Fourth floor resident Payal Choudhuri said the unpleasant view of people attending to nature's call from her house was annoying. "There is vacant land too. I have kids aged 10 and 6 years. I don't want them to get exposed to this view on a daily basis. It is terrible for houses on the ground floor as the stench is unbearable, and it's a health hazard too. They don't open their windows at all."

Despite repeated queries on this over two days, top BMRCL officials refused to respond. Chief Engineer, Storm Water Management, BBMP, Praveen Lingaiah assured TNIE that they would try to find a solution. "We need to find some public space there. If land is available, we will rebuild the toilets at the earliest."

Metro safety team to inspect KR Pura-Byp stretch today

"The bridges will be inspected from below. The process is expected to take 90 minutes," an official source said on Wednesday.

At Baiyappanahalli Metro Station, the team will carry out trolley inspection from the station up to 150 metres before KR Pura Metro Station.

The traction system, signalling, platforms and new Benniganahalli Station will be inspected. "From 4pm to 6pm, inspection will be done on the rolling stock (train) with all parameters, including alignment of the train with the platform and braking," the source said.

KSRTC conductors put forth Shakti painpoints, seek meeting with MD

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

IN the backdrop of the state government's ambitious Shakti scheme completing three months, the KSRTC Staff and Workers Federation has written to KSRTC Managing Director Anbu Kumar pointing out that conductors are facing a lot of problems in implementing the scheme.

In the letter dated September 19, Vijayabhaskar D A, general secretary of the federation, said, "The Shakti scheme that offers free travel to women in government buses have successfully completed three months. However, while implementing the scheme, conductors are facing a lot of problems."

The federation has sought an emergency meeting with the managing director to convey the problems faced by conductors so that suitable solutions can be found to the issues.

PICTURE FOR REPRESENTATION

Citing a recent example of harassment faced by conductors, Vijayabhaskar said, "On September 14, a KSRTC bus headed from Sigandur to Kolar. Four women boarded the bus and they had reserved their seats. As is the usual practice, conductor Ramanna checked the reservation ticket and marked it in the ticket chart and allowed them to travel."

When the bus was crossing Ripponpete, the inspection team started verifying the tickets and found that the four women who got in by producing the reservation ticket were not given 'zero tickets'. The conductor was issued an offence memo, he said. He added that they have mentioned this instance in the letter, but there are many more like this that need to be addressed.

Federation members said conductors can be suspended and transferred to a different bus depot.

"The conductor did not issue zero tickets by force of his regular practice. It is not that he did this deliberately for his personal gain," Vijayabhaskar said and insisted that till the conductors get used to the new scheme, action should not be taken against them.

"They must be warned and let go till their old habits change," he said.

BWSSB engineer: Sewage line laid below SWD

BWSSB officials too admitted to leaving the work incomplete, but with excuses. Divya PS, Executive Engineer (Wastewater Management), BWSSB, said the inspection of work on the sewage link line executed by a new contractor is yet to be done. Because of this, linking of the sewage network from Gangadhar Nagar to Yelachenahalli has not been completed.

"The areas here are very narrow and there are space constraints. We have taken the sewage line below the stormwater drain. The sewage network linking will be done at the earliest. Once linking of sewage pipelines between Gangadhar Nagar and Yelachenahalli is completed, there will be no sewage flooding," she said.

21st September: The best planetary aspect is Neptune's imaginative relationship with expansive Jupiter. This means that we may all be pushing as hard as we can to put our romantic plans into effect. It's an amazing moment and the sky is the limit, although any reasonable astrologer would advise great caution.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Business affairs, especially joint enterprises, are set to improve from now on. The fact that your ambition may be responsible for a little friction and antagonism should not put you off, or destroy an increasing mood of prosperity and well-being.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
The energetic planet Mars is now assuming a dominant influence in your life, partly because it is about to signify a pronounced shift in your circumstances - and you'll be on top form. Few will be able to resist your dynamic charm but it's important to pace yourself and avoid pointless arguments.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Travel, especially for social reasons, will be a priority, although it does seem likely that delays are inevitable. If you are experiencing a brief financial crisis this could well be the result of your lavish habits in the past. That's why it might be impossible to do more than trim costs around the edges.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
There's always the prospect of dramatic events at home, and house buyers and sellers may expect negotiations to proceed well, even though it is unlikely that agreements will be reached just yet. Today's activities focus on romantic hopes - in the broadest, most open-minded and hopeful, sense.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
You are quite happy with your own company, although partners may find this difficult if they are relying on joint arrangements - and expecting you to turn up! Please do not let other people down, as neither you nor they will benefit from broken agreements.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
The question of whether career interests will benefit from current influences depends on the precise nature of your work. Activities which have a creative dimension will bring benefits, while routine tasks, however worthwhile, could fail to deliver the goods.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
From now on you can reasonably hope that more time will be devoted to your interests than to partners', and this could be a pleasant change. Use diplomacy, tact and co-operation if you want to get your own way - and never give anyone the chance to suspect that you're going behind their backs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
There's long been a tie in between your social activities and your - or a partner's - professional obligations. Work will take on a new lease of life as partners and colleagues rally round to help out with your responsibilities. You must also realise that only better organisation will contribute to a healthier domestic routine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
It's probably not yet the time to turn your attention to domestic improvements unless, that is, there are indications to this effect in your individual horoscope, set for your exact time of birth. Still, there's no reason why you shouldn't start laying the foundations now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
If you are facing opposition from partners it's probably your own fault. You may feel hard-done-by but, to be perfectly blunt and honest, you are no saint, yourself. You must accept your share of the blame before relationships can genuinely be patched up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
The accent may be on the lighter side of life, but only if you consciously put certain problems and difficulties behind you. Allow your imagination to wander and it will lead you to pastures new. But don't feel obliged to push your unusual ideas to their logical conclusion - you can back off for the next three months.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
If you've recently forged a connection with a group or society, you'll be sucked in deeper than you expected. It is a sign of your increased sense of self-confidence that you are now prepared to take on an important role. For most of you, personal pressures are now declining sharply.

COPS RECOVER RS 56L FROM HOSAPETE MUTT

Court remands seer Abhinava Halaswamy, who was held in Odisha, to 10-day police custody

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

A day after Abhinava Halaswamy, the seer of the Shri Halaswami Mahasamsthana Mutt in Hirehadagali near Hosapete, was arrested, the sleuths of the Central Crime Branch (CCB) recovered Rs 56 lakh from the mutt on Wednesday.

So far, the police have recovered Rs 2.81 crore in the Rs 5 crore cheating case, in which a businessman was conned after promising a BJP ticket to contest from the Byndoor Assembly constituency.

Halaswamy, who was arrested in Odisha, was produced before the Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate Court (ACMM court) on Wednesday morning. The court remanded him in police custody for 10 days, after which Halaswamy was taken to the mutt in Hosapete.

A senior police officer said the probe revealed that the seer had ensured that Rs 56 lakh was kept in the 'pallakki' (palanquin) at the mutt.

"Through his driver, he had got the money placed in the 'pallakki'. One of his disciples had kept the money which was given by the driver. Based on that information, Halaswamy was taken to the mutt for spot mahazar and the money was recovered," the officer said.

The seer was accused of receiving Rs 1.5 crore from the complainant and had returned Rs 50 lakh before the complaint was filed.

"Now, Rs 44 lakh has to be recovered from him. He has invested the money by taking land on lease. It will be recovered soon," the officer added.

The police are also questioning Halaswamy about the involvement of others in the case. The police had earlier recovered Rs 2.25 crore from right-wing activist and prime accused in the case Chaitra Kundapura and others. The money was invested in gold and as fixed deposits in various banks. Efforts are on to recover the remaining amount.

CCB takes BJP Yuva Morcha leader to Kadur

CHIKKAMAGALURU: The Central Crime Branch police brought Gagan Kadur, who is an accused along with right wing activist Chaitra Kundapura in the cash-for-ticket scam, to conduct a spot inspection in his hometown Kadur and Chikkamagaluru. Gagan, a BJP Yuva Morcha leader and second accused, was brought to the Chikkamagaluru Inspection Bungalow for spot inspection and interrogation. It is said that it was in this bungalow that Chaitra and his gang met Viswanathiji and held a meeting with businessman Govinda Babu Pujari, who was promised a BJP ticket to contest the Assembly election for a payment of Rs 5 crore. CCB officials visited Gagan's house in Kadur and spoke to his family members. They later went to the HDFC Bank branch on UB Road and collected details of Gagan's bank transactions. The bank officials told them that the bank account has been blocked. ENS

FOUR miscreants who had kidnapped and robbed a 52-year-old beef supplier have been arrested by the Adugodi police. The accused, in the guise of ring wing activists, intercepted the vehicle transporting beef from Ramanagara to beef stalls in the city. The incident happened on September 10 near the MICO Layout signal. The accused who came in a car kidnapped the beef supplier and the cleaner. CAUVERY: CM SEEKS PM'S INTERVENTION; DON'T POLITICISE ISSUE, HITS BACK BJP

All-party meetings after releasing water meaningless, says saffron party; Put pressure on Centre: DKS to state MPs

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah, who met Members of Parliament and Union Ministers from Karnataka in New Delhi on Wednesday to discuss the Cauvery dispute, sought the intervention of Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

Union Parliamentary Affairs Minister Pralhad Joshi, however, criticised Siddaramaiah for politicising the issue. "Former chief minister and MP DV Sadananda Gowda and I told the chief minister that he has been politicising the issue. You first release water to Tamil Nadu and then call for an all-party meeting... and then blame the Centre. The meeting should have been held before releasing water. Bharatiya Janata Party leaders from Karnataka, however, are extending support to the government over the Cauvery issue," he said.

Joshi alleged that the Congress government in Karnataka was releasing water to Tamil Nadu to please its I.N.D.I.A bloc partner DMK.

Siddaramaiah, meanwhile, maintained that he had in the past called for all-party meetings as and when Karnataka was told to release water by the Cauvery Water Management Authority (CWMA) and Cauvery Water Regulation Committee (CWRC).

"Despite political differences, all the MPs from Karnataka are united in supporting the state's stand in the matter," claimed Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar, who is also the water resources minister.

He asked the MPs from the state to pressurise the Centre to find a solution to the Cauvery dispute. Shivakumar, however, said he hopes Karnataka will get justice in the Supreme Court.

Union Minister of State for Agriculture Shobha Karandlaje accused Tamil Nadu of misusing Cauvery water by expanding its sowing area than what is permitted. "Last year, they got 600 tmcft of water and utilised 400 tmcft and let 200 tmcft run into the sea," she claimed. She said Karnataka should argue in the Supreme Court on similar lines.

Former water resources minister Govind Karjol, speaking to The New Indian Express, questioned the need for the meeting in Delhi. "There is 40% less storage in the reservoirs compared to last year. It is a distress year and water cannot be released. The government should have gone to courts and the distress condition should have been brought to the notice of CWMA and CWRC. As per norms, Tamil Nadu can cultivate only 1,08,000 hectares... but they use Cauvery water to cultivate 4,00,000 hectares. They are doing this at a time when the rain has failed," Karjol, a former deputy chief minister, added.

He claimed that while farmers in Karnataka have received a mere 7 tmcft of water, their counterparts in Tamil Nadu have got 67 tmcft and are even planning to cultivate their second crop.

"But when Karnataka tells Tamil Nadu that it is unable to release water owing to drought, Tamil Nadu talks about shortage of drinking water. Now, if we release 5,000 cusecs for 15 days we will be releasing 7 tmcft to Tamil Nadu," he added.

He hit out at the state government for calling an all-party meeting after releasing water to Tamil Nadu.

Rain pushes up reservoir levels in state, but still not enough to release to TN

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

RAINFALL over the past few days has brought some succour to Karnataka, and pushed up water levels in dams, but the situation is far from comfortable. Farmers are agitated with the Cauvery Water Management Authority's earlier direction to the state to continue to release 5,000 cusecs of water daily to Tamil Nadu.

As on Tuesday evening, water storage levels were as follows: Harangi dam -- 7.762 tmcft, Hemavathi -- 16.003 tmcft, KRS -- 16.191 tmcft, and Kabini – 11.067 tmcft, adding up to a total storage of 51.023 tmcft. About 12,000 cusecs of water flowed into the reservoirs because of good rain on Tuesday.

Water experts say the situation is still unpredictable, and that this time last year, the water level in dams was at a comfortable 102 tmcft. Legal experts, however, state that water share between the two states has been given on a 50 per cent dependability basis, which postulates that for every year of surplus, there could be a year of drought, so there is no need to feel agitated.

Kannada Horatagararu and farmers are aghast that water is being released without heeding the woes of farmers. Farmer leader Kurubur Shantakumar said, "The Cauvery water regulatory authorities need to be more objective, or they should be done away with." "Bengaluru and the Cauvery basin cities need about 33 tmcft of water for drinking water needs," say urban experts. Erratic monsoons over the past many years have led experts to peg the water year at July 31, instead of May 31, as drinking water needs cannot be compromised. Assuming that the monsoon arrives on June 1, there should be enough drinking water till July 31.

At the present storage level, if a small quantity is released for irrigation, it can be done only till mid-October. The rain deficit has led to a huge fall in rain yield. Asked if the Mekedatu dam project will help resolve the water scarcity issue, experts say such projects can mitigate the situation to some extent.

FOLLOWING widespread criticism for their silence on the Cauvery dispute, several prominent Kannada actors took to social media to lend their support to Karnataka's farmers. They even stated that they are ready for any struggle when it comes to matters related to land, water and language of the state.

Stating that farmers are the backbone of the country and Cauvery is the backbone of Karnataka farmers, senior actor and producer Shivarajkumar said farmers are already in trouble due to a poor monsoon. Taking to 'X', the actor advised both states (Karnataka and Tamil Nadu) to examine all aspects and find a solution.

"Our Cauvery is our right. I believe that the government which has won with so much consensus will not abandon the people who believe in Cauvery. I demand that the experts formulate a strategy immediately and give justice. I also have my voice in the land-water-language struggle," actor Kichcha Sudeep posted on 'X'.

President of Kannada Film Chamber Ba Ma Harish said that many actors and those associated with the Kannada film industry have expressed their concern over the Cauvery issue. He said that while some have taken to social media, others spoke to the media.

Harish added that many actors have been visiting the film chamber office in wake of the upcoming elections and have been expressing their concern and support. In Mysuru, actor Raghavendra Rajkumar addressed his concern.

Actor Abhishek Ambareesh also posted on Instagram supporting the farmers of Karnataka.

He said, "It is not right that the Cauvery water which is the lifeblood of millions of people in Karnataka is being unjustly taken away."

Meanwhile, Kollywood actors in Tamil Nadu held a meeting expressing the concerns of the farmers in their state.

CM, DyCM to meet Shekhwat

THE implementation of the Mekedatu project will help resolve the dispute, Siddaramaiah said. Siddaramaiah and Shivakumar will meet Union Jal Shakti Minister Gajendra Singha Shekhwat on Thursday. Regardless of the meeting with the union minister, Karnataka will move the Supreme Court to stay the CWMA order to release 5,000 cusecs of water to TN till September 25. TN's plea before the three-judge SC bench will come up for hearing on Thursday.

"Prahlad Joshi had taken the responsibility of leading our team to meet Shekhawat on Thursday. After the meeting, we will decide on the action to be taken. We are firm on moving the SC against CWMA's order," Shivakumar said.

WOMEN'S QUOTA BILL

CM seeks internal reservation for SC/ST women

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

The Women's Reservation Bill is a welcome decision, but the very purpose of it will fail if women from the backward castes are not given internal reservation in it, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah has said.

Since there is already political reservation for Scheduled Castes (SC) and Scheduled Tribes (ST), it should not be a problem giving reservation to women of those communities, the CM said and added that they need to take note of the fact that women from backward castes do not have social, economic or educational capabilities to compete with others to gain representation politically.

The CM alleged that a detailed examination of the Women's Reservation Bill shows that it was done with the intention of political gains, more than giving political justice to women. If it is implemented in a similar form, women may have to wait for another two decades to get a political reservation, he said.

Siddaramaiah said if PM Narendra Modi had an honest intention of providing reservation for women, he should have tabled the same bill that was presented in Rajya Sabha in 2010 when Congress was in power. He said it will come into effect after the next census and delimitation of constituencies, which are expected in 2026 and 2031, respectively, he said.

The CM said it was the Congress party's dream to give 33 % political reservation for women and late former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi had made a sincere effort to realize this dream. Political reservation for women was also included in the Congress manifesto for the 2019 Lok Sabha elections, he added.

'Will resume protest for 2A quota for Panchamsalis'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Vijayapura

Accusing Chief Minister Siddaramaiah of not keeping his word of convening a meeting after the budget session to discuss 2A reservation for Panchamsalis, Basavajaya Mrutunjayaswamy of Kudalasangama announced that the community has decided to resume their agitation peacefully to mount pressure on the government.

The seer, who is leading the protest, said Congress has come to power with the community's votes, and they should now return the favour by giving 2A reservation. Welcoming the government's decision to recommend ST reservation for the Kuruba community, he said the same should be done for the Panchamsalis.

On criticism that the previous BJP government snatched away reservation to Muslims and gave it to Panchamsalis, the seer refrained from commenting.

"The government should give 2A reservation before the Lok Sabha elections. It is left to the government to decide on the procedure," he said, adding that community MLAs of different parties are with them in the agitation. He hoped the leaders will attend the national-level convention to be held soon.

A district-level programme will be held in Chadchan town on September 24 where over 15,000 people of the community are expected to attend, he said. Regarding the Union Government's 'One Nation, One Election' proposal, the seer said that the system would save massive taxpayers' money, and supported the Bill seeking to reserve one-third of the seats in Parliament and state legislatures for women.

MATTER OF CONCERN

Erratic monsoon ups human-animal conflict, worrying farmers in border dists

K SHIVA KUMAR @ Mysuru

SHIVAMURTHY, a 67-year-old farmer, owns three acres of land at Attigulipura in Suvarnavathi achukat of Chamarajanagar taluk. He had borrowed money to plant 250 coconut saplings that he had nurtured for five years. They were expected to give yield next year.

But recently, Shivamurthy and his wife were in for a shock as a herd of elephants ran amok through his field, destroying 24 coconut trees besides damaging the fence.

Though such elephant attacks are not uncommon in these border villages, what was strange was the timing of the incident. Normally, villagers expect elephants to come visiting during summer months, but this attack on Shivamurthy's farm has occurred in September, in the middle of monsoon when forests are expected to have enough water and fodder. But the continuous dry spell has left forests dry, forcing animals out of forests. Villagers living on the fringes of forests are scared to step out of their homes late evenings as elephants are commonly being sighted near villages on the Chamarajanagar-Coimbatore highway.

Karthik's woes are no different from Shivamurthy. He too had borrowed from his relatives and friends to take up farming on a land taken on lease. He took up banana cultivation and had slept at the shed in the farm to protect his crop from wild animals. But Ganesha Chaturthi was a sad day for him as elephants ripped through his farm, destroying over 300 plants. Till then, he had managed to save his crop from wild boars, but he could do nothing with the elephants. Karthik raised an alarm and tried to alert his neighbours, but that did not help.

Near Channanajaswamy temple too elephants have destroyed one acre of banana plantation. Mahesh, who is spending his nights at the farm along with his brother, said, "I may be losing crops to wildlife attacks, but I will continue to do farming."

Basavanna of Ramapura village said he lost nearly 40 percent of his maize crop in the wild boar attack as he did not have money to install a solar fence.

Attacks by wild animals over the last 10-15 years have drastically reduced the quantum of produce in their farms. Frustrated youngsters have been migrating to Mysuru, Bengaluru and cities in Tamil Nadu to earn a living. Some people have also lost their lives, further scaring the villagers.

The government does pay compensation for crop loss. But farmers, requesting anonymity, said they have to bribe the ground staff to visit their farms, conduct mahazar and send reports to higher officials. "How can we pay bribes when we have lost our livelihoods," asked a woman farmer. Farmers in Punajnur and nearby villages close to the BRT wildlife sanctuary and adjacent Sathyamangalam Tiger Reserve said wild animals are suffering because of failure of monsoon and long dry spells. There is very little fodder for animals as the invasive species lantana has taken over most stretches of forests, while bamboo has been drying up for the last five years. Increased tourism activities, construction of resorts and homestays are also to blame, they added While farmers said the increased man-animal conflicts are because of the jump in wildlife populations, experts denied it.

Wildlife activist Malleshappa said the forest department that has restarted the work of creating elephant corridors in Moodahalli, Halathur and other areas should purchase more land to expand such corridors to check man-animal conflicts.

He said that recent incidents are not because of an increased population of wild animals, but due to dry spell in their habitats. He feared that such conflicts would only go up during dry, summer months.

The forest department is installing fences using rails in Biligirirangaswamy Temple Reserve, Bandipur and Nagarahole to stop animals from straying out.

If sparse rain continues, waterholes within forests will dry up by January-February, making life miserable for those living on the fringes of forests. Over the last five years, bamboo has dried up, making their favourite food unavailable for elephants.

Experts suggested that forest officials should collect bamboo seeds, clear lantana bushes and grow bamboo groves to help animals, especially elephants.

Following the recent death of tiger cubs due to starvation and a male tiger due to alleged poisoning, Tamil Nadu forest department has decided to strengthen patrolling in six forest ranges in Nilgiris division

No tokenism, need true change: TN CM

'Delimitation will affect states in South'

T MURUGANANDHAM @ Chennai

CHIEF Minister MK Stalin on Wednesday welcomed the Union government's Women's Reservation Bill, but said instead of passing token bills, we must work towards genuine and meaningful change.

"People are clever enough to see through the BJP's empty rhetoric as the proposal would come into force only after a delimitation exercise is carried out on the basis of a yet-to-be held census," Stalin said in a nine-page statement issued on Wednesday. Stalin also sought assurance from Prime Minister Narendra Modi that southern states, particularly Tamil Nadu, would not see a reduction in the number of representatives under the impending delimitation exercise to be carried based on population. The union government must also not ignore the demands for representation for BC and OBC women in the bill, the DMK president said.

Stalin said the delimitation process is a 'Sword of Damocles' hanging over the head of Tamil Nadu and south India as it would reduce the number of representatives elected to Parliament from these states. This political conspiracy should be thwarted. The attempt to betray Tamil Nadu, a politically conscious state, should be nipped in the bud. "It is unjust that southern states, which have diligently followed the union government's policies to control population growth, must face punitive measures during constituency delimitation," he said.

People are clever enough to see through the BJP's empty rhetoric as the proposal would come into force only after a delimitation exercise is carried out on the basis of a yet-to-be held census

MK Stalin, TN CM

In the 2026 delimitation exercise, the state is likely to lose eight more seats on the basis of population while the number of Lok Sabha seats for northern states would go up. This would reduce the political representation of southern states.

Stalin also pointed out that according to the Global Gender Gap Index, 2022, India stood at 48th place among 146 countries. In Indian Parliament and legislatures, women's representation is low and through the 33% reservation, this shortcoming could be addressed, he said.

15 spotted deer die in Bannerghatta zoo

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

AFTER the death of seven leopard cubs, the Bannerghatta Biological Park (BBP) has recorded the death of 15 spotted deer, which were suffering from Clostridium Bacterial infection.

BBP Executive Director AV Surya Sen told The New Indian Express that the 15 deer were part of the 38 that were rescued and brought from St John's Hospital in Bengaluru on August 17. They were kept under quarantine in a separate enclosure that was created for them in the herbivore safari area.

He said that when these animals were brought, they fought among themselves on the first day and five died of severe injuries. After some days, as per procedure, they were shifted to a soft quarantine area. There they started developing a bacterial infection in their gut. The toxins in the liver started to multiply and the animals started to die.

A veterinarian explained that cases of Clostridium Bacterial infection are also reported among sheep during monsoon when the fresh blade of grass shoots up and the young or weak ones are unable to manage the change in chemical composition, developing liver cirrhosis.

The forest department had handed over four deer to St John's Hospital in the 1980s. They had bred among themselves and their numbers had multiplied to 38. All of them are genetically weak because of inbreeding. The remaining 23 surviving deer are anaemic and very weak. There are chances of more deer dying in the coming days, BBP officials said.

The rescued deer will continue to stay in the quarantine area and will not be allowed to mingle with the existing herbivore population of the zoo. These animals will also not be on display as per the protocol that no rescued animal is put on public display.

'Nipah surveillance on Kerala border will continue'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mangaluru

HEALTH and Family Welfare Minister Dinesh Gundu Rao said on Wednesday that the Nipah surveillance at Kerala borders of the state will continue till October 10 when the incubation period of the last Nipah case reported in Kerala lapses. Speaking to reporters in Mangaluru after holding a meeting with health officials of Chamarajanagar, Mysuru, Kodagu and Dakshina Kannada districts which share border with Kerala, the minister said the state is taking all precautionary measures, though no suspected Nipah cases have been reported in the state so far. He said alarm has been sounded in border areas and all government and private hospitals are put on high alert. About 20 check-posts have been set up in these four districts and over 10,000 people have been screened for fever, cough and other symptoms so far. Hamlets in HD Kote taluk on the border that is within 150 km from Nipah outbreak centre in Kerala and Mangaluru which has close links with Kerala are put on high alert, he said.

"The surveillance will be continued till October 10 when the incubation period of the last Nipah case (September 15) detected in Kerala comes to end. After that, the surveillance will be relaxed," he said. To a query, he said they did not find any case definition (people who have visited the Nipah affected place) so far.

"If we come across such cases, we will take their swab and send it to virology institute for tests," he said. The minister said the authorities have been asked to take all necessary measures by keeping the facilities for quarantine, exclusive ward, mask, kits etc ready to meet any emergencies.

Patil said though chances of spreading are lean, CM Siddaramaiah has cautioned the deputy commissioners and CEOs to take preventive steps.

HC stays KEA allotment of seats in mop-up round

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court has stayed the notification issued by the Karnataka Examinations Authority (KEA) permitting the allotment of seats in the Mop-Up Round UGNEET-Medical-2023 to students who have already been allotted seats in the first two rounds and those who have completed admission formalities by paying the fees.

A division bench of Justice G Narendar and Justice Vijaykumar A Patil passed the interim order after hearing petitions filed by two candidates, Mahendra Reddy C N and Hitashree Y L, aspirants of the MBBS course.

The students questioned the notification dated September 14, 2023, issued by the KEA through which candidates who have already been allotted seats and taken admission, have also been permitted to participate in the mop-up round.

The court, however, made clear that those students who have not paid the fees and completed the admission would be eligible for consideration under the mop-up round. The petitioners challenged the notification on the ground that it is contrary to the general instructions issued by the KEA.

BENGALURU : An 11-month-old girl from Pakistan has been treated for a rare genetic disorder, infantile osteopetrosis at a private hospital in Bengaluru. Often referred to as "marble bone disease", the condition poses severe challenges, including bone stiffness, progressive loss of vision and hearing, and bone marrow failure, leading to death within a few years of life. The Pakistani girl failed to find a fully matched donor within her family and even the donor registries in Pakistan, and was directed to Narayana Health City. Doctors here employed an innovative depletion technique, wherein they successfully performed a transplant without a fully-matched donor.

Blue jellyfish wash up on Honnavar beach

SUBHASH CHANDRA NS @ Honnavar (Uttara Kannada)

HUNDREDS of blue jellyfish have washed ashore at Tonka beach near Honnavar in Uttara Kannada district, leaving visitors baffled.

Last week, a Bryde's whale washed ashore at Tonka. "For the first time we are witnessing such a large number of blue jellyfish at Tonka beach. This began a few days ago and blue jellyfish are scattered all over the beach," Vinay K of Tonka told TNIE.

Last year, a few of them washed ashore at Blue Flag beach in the district. Experts here said that blue jellyfish wash up the shore only when there is a variation in temperature in the sea.

"The temperature variation could be the major inducing factor which results in jellyfish blooms. Warmer temperatures lead to jellyfish bloom. They not only help increase food availability but also promote jellyfish reproduction," Prakash Mesta, a marine biologist, said.

Blue jellyfish washed ashore on Tonka beach near Honnavar | EXPRESS

He said this species is a sort of hydroid. They float on water and thrive on crabs, prawns and fish. They are spread several miles across the sea forming a deep blue carpet and deprive prominent species, including dolphins, of their food. They stick to the fins of big fish and dolphins, making it difficult for them to swim. Being fast swimmers, dolphins will not be able to swim because of this. They tend to move away from jellyfish, he said.

Blue jellyfish tend to remain in one place until food is available. "This will create a temporary fish scarcity in the region," he said.

WORLD ALZHEIMER'S DAY

Nimhans, Cipla Foundation set up pilot neuro-palliative unit for Alzheimer's patients

BALA CHAUHAN @Bengaluru

IN a first of its kind initiative in India, the National Institute of Mental Health & Neuro Sciences (NIMHANS) with the support of Cipla Foundation, has set up a multidisciplinary neuro palliative care unit to reach out to people with neuro-degenerative disorders, among whom dementia patients and their caregivers form a major proportion.

Set up in November 2021, the pilot initiative has reached out to over 2,000 patients with neuro-degenerative conditions, and 206 dementia patients from Karnataka and outside have received advanced care through telephone/home-based supportive care after initial diagnosis and treatment plan. There are plans to scale it to the national level because the need is huge.

According to a recent multicentric study, the prevalence of dementia in India is around 7.4% with nearly 90 lakh people suffering from the debilitating neuro-degenerative brain disease. By 2036, the number of individuals with dementia will rise to 1.7 crore. Unfortunately, less than 10% of dementia cases in the country are currently diagnosed and treated, largely because of ignorance, lack of awareness and resources, stigma and scarcity of experts and memory clinics. Alzheimer's disease, which causes the brain to shrink and brain cells to eventually die, is the most common cause of dementia.

Palliative care need not be limited to end-stage cancer patients only. The neuro-palliative care unit at Nimhans is an outreach initiative for people with life limiting, chronic neuro degenerative conditions.

Dr Priya Thomas, Additional Professor

Dementia is characterized by progressive memory loss, mobility and communication difficulties, impaired judgment, and behavioural changes. "Most of the neurological conditions have high support needs. Dementia poses a significant challenge to affected individuals, their families and immediate caregivers. External support services are often unavailable, inaccessible, unaffordable and unsuited to meet the needs of patients. This leads to increased suffering, owing to the direct and indirect costs associated with caring," said Dr Priya Thomas, additional professor, Psychiatric Social Work (PSW), Neurology, Nimhans.

She added that patients with neurological diseases have unique requirements owing to mobility issues, communication difficulties, cognitive impairment, among several other neurological deficits.

"Most degenerative neurological diseases remain incurable, shorten a person's lifespan, increase dependence on caregivers, diminish quality of life, and are associated with pain and other physical, psychological, and spiritual suffering that are often difficult to control," she said.

Palliative care is a multi-disciplinary approach for patients with terminal illness like cancer. It focuses on pain and symptom management, psycho-social and spiritual support, and effective communication to improve the quality of life of patients, their families and caregivers. "Palliative care need not be limited to end-stage cancer patients only. The neuro-palliative care unit at Nimhans is an outreach initiative for people with life limiting, chronic neuro degenerative conditions. It can supplement routine care of neurological patients in many ways, and is an important component of patient care," she added.

With India's elderly population expected to reach a staggering 20 crore by 2031, there's an urgent demand for a national action plan to address Alzheimer's disease.

Caregivers also need some care

NAMRATA SINDWANI @Bengaluru

PEOPLE diagnosed with dementia are not sole sufferers. Their caregivers also feel frustrated, overwhelmed, burned out and guilty while prioritising themselves over taking care of their family members.

Addressing an online panel discussion--The Story of Dementia: Understanding the Ailment and its Care, Bhavana Issar, founder of Caregiver Saathi, said caregiving is often considered a thankless job. It is important for a caregiver to have a coping mechanism. People must try to improve their caregiving skills and not leave the burden on the women in the family, she added. Experts noted that 80% caregivers are women who end up taking care of the patient along with children and other family members. Ahead of the World Alzheimer's Day on September 21, Dr Debanjan Bannerjee, Consultant Psychiatrist, Apollo Hospital, said that currently dementia is incurable. Medicines only delay the progression of illness, modify behavioural problems nd regularise sleeping and eating habits. The Dementia India Report estimates 8.8 million Indians are suffering from dementia. Keeping an eye on symptoms like hearing loss, smoking, alcoholism, hypertension, social isolation or depression can help reduce the risk of dementia by 40%, he added.

CPM's ABSENCE FROM INDIA BLOC WOULD BE A HISTORIC BLUNDER

THE Communist Party of India (Marxist) is known for committing 'historic blunders'. A Marxist could have become the country's prime minister in 1996 had the dogmatic party leaders not stopped Jyoti Basu on ideological grounds. Barely twelve years later, the CPM made another blunder by withdrawing support to the UPA government when Manmohan Singh went ahead with the Indo-US nuclear deal. The party had played a crucial role in shaping UPA 1.0's most-touted welfare scheme—the jobs guarantee law—and was a powerful political force with its highest ever Lok Sabha tally of forty-three. But after it withdrew support to the UPA, the CPM slowly started disappearing from the national scene. With the new Opposition alliance INDIA coming together and CPM boss Sitaram Yechury acting as a glue among various parties, the CPM was gradually coming back in the limelight. But then the party's powerful politburo put out one of the most confusing political statements of recent times—that it would be "a member and part of INDIA, but not a partner".

The Opposition's efforts to take on the BJP suffered a setback, at least in public perception. CPM leaders, however, argue that their decision is in line with the stance they had taken at the Kannur party congress in April 2022—that there should not be any pre-poll alliance. Nonetheless, the statement has sparked discontent, even in the ranks of its closest ally, the CPI. CPM leaders are also having a hard time explaining the ambiguous position to their own cadre.

The CPM is numerically weak and has only three members in the current Lok Sabha. What makes it relevant is the credibility it brings to the table—something most other INDIA bloc partners cannot lay claim to. The Congress acknowledges this aspect quite openly; its organisational secretary K C Venugopal dismissed reports of discord the very day the politburo announced its decision. One can understand that the electoral compulsions of its units in West Bengal and Kerala have forced the CPM to take this position. But it's time to decide who its main opponent is at the moment. It will be political suicide for the CPM if it stays away from any opposition platform in the name of ideological correctness. The party is not healthy enough to survive yet another political blunder.

ADITYA SETS OUT TO SHINE TORCH ON SUN

INDIA'S first space-based mission to study the Sun left its earthly orbit at 2 am on Tuesday. The Aditya-L1 craft started on a 110-day journey to Lagrange point 1 (L1), a location in space 1.5 million km away, where it will be placed in an orbit to gaze at the sun unobstructed. This point, a hundredth of the distance between the Earth and the Sun, is where the gravitational forces of the two celestial bodies balance out. This allows the satellite to remain in position with reduced fuel consumption.

The scientific community is excited. The craft is carrying seven payloads to study the Sun's photosphere (surface), corona (outermost layers), and chromosphere (a thin layer between the photosphere and the corona) using electromagnetic, particle and magnetic field detectors. Using the special vantage of L1, four payloads will directly view the Sun, while the other three will conduct in situ studies of particles and fields near L1. These will relay important data on how the Sun affects its planets, and would help understand the corona and explosive bursts of plasma from it that cause intense geomagnetic storms on Earth. These storms can disrupt power grids and telecommunication networks, and expose astronauts to dangerous doses of radiation. The data will also help understand other eruptions of intense high-energy radiation from the Sun's surface called solar flares. These flares too cause radio and magnetic disturbances on Earth. It is also expected to provide a better scientific understanding of the Sun's activities and their probable impacts on Earth, the other planets, and their satellites.

The public's excitement over Aditya-L1 is dwarfed by the euphoria following the Chandrayaan 3 moon landing. But this mission is critical for science. That is why there are five similar solar missions being conducted at present—NASA and the European Space Agency's Solar and Heliospheric Observatory, NASA's STEREO-A, Solar Dynamics Observatory, Parker Solar Probe, and the ESA-led Solar Orbiter. As we wait for Aditya to begin its observations from L1, scientists at the Indian Space Research Organisation are keeping their fingers crossed on whether Chandrayaan 3's lander Vikram and rover Pragyaan can be revived over the next couple of days to resume experiments. The Sun that Aditya has set out to explore will rise on the lunar south pole on September 22, hopefully recharging Vikram and Pragyaan's solar panels to begin 'Chandrayaan 3-2.0'. Meanwhile, Aditya is speeding out to shine its torch on the Sun.

QUICK TAKE

ALL SKILLED UP AND JOBLESS

THE Centre's flagship skill development scheme has trained 1.4 crore candidates over seven years, but has found jobs for only one in every five of them. Uttar Pradesh has trained the largest cohort in the Pradhan Mantri Kaushal Vikas Yojana's short vocational training modules; Telangana and Puducherry are the only ones to have placed more than a third of their trainees. The Centre has tweaked the scheme four times to raise the placement rate, but it has stodgily remained low. A Lok Sabha standing committee has recommended using more of the allotted funds, reducing dropouts, and connecting better with industry. We can do with another course correction.

SOCIETY OWES ITS CHILDREN BETTER HEALTHCARE

PROF K SRINATH REDDY

Cardiologist and epidemiologist at PHFI. His book Pulse to the Planet: The Long Lifeline of Human Health has been published in September 2023

SOUMYADIP SINHA

RECENTLY, my car stopped behind a school bus in the middle of a traffic jam in Delhi. The children were returning home from school in the afternoon. A street vendor was selling packets of junk food to eager hands reaching out from the bus windows. It appeared that this was a usual occurrence.

The vendor cannot be faulted as he is working and earning a meagre income which he hopes will support him and his family. The trader who has employed the street vendor, too, is not at fault because that is part of his daily commerce. The children are not to blame either because they have become addicted to the taste of these calorie-packed, nutrient-poor snacks. Parents may be partly to blame if they have not educated their children about the adverse health effects of such foods and discouraged consumption. Some of them may not even be aware of how the children are spending their pocket money.

So, who is to blame as childhood obesity rates rise and ultra-processed foods (UPFs) erode immunity, injure blood vessels and inflame tissues and organs across the body? Even if obesity is not visually apparent, body fat levels increase—especially in the abdomen. This happens at the expense of muscle mass, which growing children need to build instead. Such 'adiposity' sets the scene for the advent of hypertension and diabetes in early adulthood and heart attacks in the early midlife years. While this is well established scientific knowledge, the addictive assault of UPFs on children's bodies continues without much resistance from most of society.

Industries which produce these foods and aggressively market them to reap huge revenues are to blame. They are aware of the science, but deny, dispute or ignore the evidence of harm as they pursue profits. Governments are also to blame because regulatory measures are inadequately framed or ineffectively implemented.

The Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) banned the sale of junk foods—products which are high in salt, sugar or fat—within schools or up to 50 metres around the school. The FSSAI also launched the Eat Right India movement to promote awareness and adoption of healthy diets. However, the forces of commerce are far more powerful in promoting their products than governmental agencies are in cautioning against them. What is needed is a slew of strong fiscal and regulatory measures: higher taxes on unhealthy food products will discourage people with limited disposable income, like children, to purchase UPFs; powerful health warnings on UPF product packages, with clear communication of their being high in salt, sugar and fat; crackdown on advertising, promotion and sponsorship, including celebrity endorsements; and enforced reduction of the salt, sugar and unhealthy fat levels in manufactured food products. These must be coupled with effective programmes which promote nutrition and health literacy among parents, teachers and students.

The day after I witnessed the school bus episode, I attended a multi-stakeholder workshop on providing health and social services to children with disabilities. These disabilities were due to developmental delays, defects at birth, diseases and deficiencies. The Rashtriya Bal Swasthya Karyakram (RBSK) was launched to enable their early identification and corrective intervention. While RBSK has salutary objectives, intensity and quality of implementation are different across states. Low-income urban communities suffer because primary healthcare services don't reach them. Often, parents are left to fend for themselves as they struggle to find competent care providers and sustain this care over many years.

Here, too, society at large expresses concern but does not show sustained commitment to care, extending sympathy rather than support. Other than a few government programmes and a little compassionate philanthropy, there is no collective societal will to ensure that such children receive the care they need to achieve their full potential in areas where their disabilities do not impede them. Several disabilities can be corrected if they are detected early and the right kind of care is provided. Community-based rehabilitation services enable children to overcome limitations of their disabilities.

Often, the responsibility of providing care and support to such children falls wholly on their families which have limited finance, knowledge, and access to healthcare or social support services. Children are thereby deprived of the quantity and quality of their lives. The nation, too, loses out on talents that might have otherwise blossomed. There has to be common societal commitment to the multi-sectoral implementation of policies and programmes which recognise and readily respond to the physical, mental, emotional, nutritional, educational, and socialisation needs of these children. This is both a moral imperative and economic investment to reap the benefits of our demographic dividend.

Yet, society does not see the health of children as its collective responsibility. This is a strange paradox. Society, represented by governmental agencies, exercises its 'custodial responsibility' when there is real or perceived child abuse or severe neglect. Children are then taken away from parents and placed in childcare agencies or foster homes. However, when children's physical or mental health needs corrective or rehabilitative care, society shrugs off its responsibility and places the burden on parents. The children played no role in creating those disabilities for themselves and parents, too, are often unaware of how those birth defects, deficiencies or diseases came to affect their offspring. Shouldn't society accept that it has a collective custodial responsibility for care and support of such children? It can do so by framing enlightened policies, creating efficient systems, delivering programmes effectively and creating a collective empathetic response to the special needs of children. Not as a momentary gesture of charity but as a continued commitment to sustained social solidarity.

Be it preventing UPFs from harming child health or providing supportive care to children with disabilities, society has a collective custodial responsibility which it cannot shrug off. If we neglect the health and well-being of children despite the knowledge of what needs to be done, it will be a civilisational failure.

HOLD UP A MIRROR TO TAME ARROGANT LEADERS

R GOPALAKRISHNAN

Author and business commentator. His fifty-year professional career was spent in Hindustan Unilever and Tata Group

BUILDING BUSINESSES

IN developing organisational talent, one universal issue is that of leaders' arrogance and narcissism, which mysteriously manifests only after they have reached the pinnacle. Watch the Apple Plus film The Escape Of Carlos Ghosn and read the stories of either Brij Bhushan Saran Singh, former Indian wrestling federation president, or Luis Rubiales, former Spanish soccer federation president, to confirm that arrogant leaders are found in politics, companies, sports clubs, scientific establishments, and even in housing societies.

Imagine a character in a drama. By his body language, we know this character. We can tell by his manner that he loves himself. Like the pot calling the kettle black, sometimes a well-recognised arrogant person may refer to another as arrogant with feigned humility.

Having observed the destructive role of leadership narcissism, in 2018, I wrote a book titled Crash: Lessons from the Entry and Exit of CEOs. Dacher Keltner, psychology professor in the University of California, concluded from his experiments and studies that, when under the influence of power, leaders "acted as if they had suffered a traumatic brain injury". This is a sufficient reason for people in power to move on rather than stay in one role for too long.

Talented executives rise to the seniormost levels due to performance, skills, human relationships and charisma. Once they reach the pinnacle, they have a tendency to forget an important soft lesson: it is tougher to stay up there than it was to get there. While trapped in the headiness of office, every leader is prone to the dangers of hubris, ego, and loss of human empathy.

The leader could lose her connection with people that helped her rise in the first place. There are several tell-tale signals. First, the conviction that he or she knows what is right, and, more debilitatingly, that others are wrong. Second, the rasping desire to be the centre of attraction for all events that promote visibility of the leader, particularly inaugurations and laudatory celebrations. Third, an enthusiasm and willingness to engage with non-questioning audiences rather than to engage with internal prickly questioners. Fourth, a distrust of others, and not letting anyone get too close. Fifth, an air of personal bravado and drama in every action. Sixth, being surrounded by obvious sycophants and admirers.

Contrast this style with how humble leadership manifests. It was charming to watch the scientists in the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO), who appeared humble and almost self-effacing after their recent successful Chandrayaan 3 landing. According to insiders, these leaders exemplified ISRO as an institution—from Vikram Sarabhai and Satish Dhawan to S P Somnath. When a mission failed, the chairman faced the media. When a mission succeeded, the project team addressed the media.

AFP

Leaders often get arrogant. They need to be shown the Clementine mirror, named after Winston Churchill's wife. It's about a close person speaking truth to power

In a well-known instance, when India's first satellite launch vehicle (SLV-3) failed in 1979, chairman Satish Dhawan stood before the media and took responsibility for the failure. Next year, when the launch was successful, he immediately handed over the podium to project director Abdul Kalam, putting him in the limelight. Somnath seems to be continuing this tradition. He named his predecessors and credited them for their legacy, guidance and support. Contrast this approach with the tendency of arrogant incumbents to rubbish past leaders and grab all the credit.

What can the remedy be? I suggest two approaches: first, secure a Clementine mirror for the leader, and second, impart our traditional values during organisational training sessions.

I associate the name of Winston Churchill's wife, Clementine, with a psychological mirror. Just as an optical mirror reveals the warts and defects on the face, a psychological mirror reveals the warts and defects of the leader's behaviour—visible to others but not to the leader. Clementine is thought to have subtly influenced her husband by counselling the irascible leader about his tantrums and their negative effect on his colleagues. Every leader needs a Clementine mirror. It may be a partner, a sibling, a colleague or any person who is able to correct the leader's behavioural aberrations constructively by speaking truth to power.

Knowing when to leave is an important leadership skill. British military historian Barney White-Spunner wondered why Britain, which made the mistake of a delayed departure from India, did the same when withdrawing from Basra after the Middle Eastern War of the 1990s.

Leaders can crystallise four lessons from our Vedantic tradition.

The first is to be more self-aware. Even an inscription in the forecourt of the Temple of Apollo in Delphi states 'gnothi seauton', which means know thyself.

The second is to protect the resources that help a leader achieve his or her aims—people, partners, air, water, and natural resources, among others.

The third is to serve others before serving oneself—employees, customers and community, for example.

The fourth is to take firm and clear-headed decisions but to implement them with human compassion.

While discussing the broad subject of how great institutions build great talent and future leaders—through talent density, talent portability, assigning responsibility, and fixing accountability—institutions and future leaders should not lose sight of the pitfalls on the way. Beware of leaders in clubs, associations, companies, bureaucracies and politics.

Arrogant leadership style is one such major pitfall.

Women's quota

But the government should ensure that the quota rewards merit and that women do not distribute it among family members or use it for personal benefits.

Our voices

It is encouraging that the new women's reservation bill mandates 33% female representation in the Lok Sabha and state legislatures. As a girl, it gives me hope; I believe that more women's voices will be heard as a result. Tabled 27 years ago, the bill has a tumultuous legislative history. It should be passed without any delay.

Sonia recalls Rajiv, says 'poignant moment of life'

She asserts that any delay in implementing the Women's Reservation Bill will be gross injustice

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

MAKING a strong pitch for reservation for OBC women and a nationwide caste census, Congress parliamentary party chief Sonia Gandhi extended her party's support to the women's reservation bill passed in the Lok Sabha on Wednesday.

In her maiden speech at the new Parliament, the former Congress President demanded that the quota be implemented immediately.

Leading the Congress' charge, Gandhi said any delay in implementing the quota bill would be "gross injustice" to Indian women. According to the Bill, the quota will only be implemented after the completion of census and delimitation exercise. "Rajiv Gandhi's dream is only half fulfilled. It will be fulfilled with the passage of this bill. The Congress supports this bill," she said.

"We will be happy with the passage of this bill, but we have a concern. I want to ask a question. For last 13 years, Indian women have been waiting for their political responsibilities, and now they are being asked to wait for a few more years — two years, four years, six years, eight years," she said.

"Is such behaviour with Indian women appropriate? It is the demand of the Congress that the bill be immediately implemented... but, along with that, provision should be made for the reservation of SC, ST, OBC women after conducting a caste census," she said.

It was an emotional moment for her as her husband Rajiv Gandhi was the first one to introduce a bill on women reservation in panchayats.

"This is a very poignant moment in my life. It was my life partner Rajiv Gandhi ji who for the first time had brought the constitutional amendment for participation of women in local bodies, but it was defeated in the Rajya Sabha by seven votes. Later, the Congress government under the leadership of Prime Minister PV Narasimha Rao got it passed," Gandhi said.

"From smoke-filled kitchens to flood-lit stadiums, the Indian woman's journey has been a long one. But she has reached her destination," she added.

Recalling the contribution of the likes of Sarojini Naidu, Sucheta Kripalani, Aruna Asaf Ali, Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Rajkumari Amrit Kaur and millions of other women, she said they have always ensured that the dreams of Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru Sardar Patel, Baba Saheb Ambedkar and Maulana Azad are realised.

'Of 90 secys, how many from OBC community?'

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

EXTENDING support for the women's quota bill, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Wednesday urged the government for the immediate implementation and said that the legislation is "incomplete" without provision for quota for OBCs.

"There is one thing that makes this bill incomplete. I would like to have seen the OBC reservation included in this bill," said Gandhi.

Echoing his party's view on caste census, Gandhi said that it is the need of the hour to hold a nationwide caste census. Participating in the debate, Gandhi said that out of 90 secretaries of the government of India, only three are from the Other Backward Classes and control only five per cent of the Budget, which he said was an "insult" to the backward classes.

"It is important that a large chunk of India's women should have access to this reservation and that is missing in this bill," he said, adding that the idea that a new census and delimitation are required to implement the bill seemed "strange".

Demand for OBC quota gains ground, concern over implementation

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

AS the Lok Sabha passed the long-awaited Women's Reservation Bill on Wednesday, the clamour for quota for the Other Backward Classes (OBC) gained momentum with several opposition parties raising the pitch for the contentious issue of quota within the quota.

While supporting the Bill, opposition parties have also stuck to their demand for immediate implementation of it.

Several Opposition leaders, including Congress leader Sonia Gandhi, TMC's Mahua Moitra and NCP MP Supriya Sule, slammed the Modi government for bringing a bill that cannot come into effect before the 2029 general election. According to the bill, introduced by Law Minister Arjun Ram Meghwal on Wednesday, the provision for implementing 33% reservation for women in the Lok Sabha and state assemblies will begin after the census and delimitation were in line with the Constitution.

The delimitation, or redrawing of parliamentary constituencies will be based on the decadal census, which was indefinitely postponed post-Covid in 2021. Participating in the debate, DMK leader Kanimozhi said the clause pertaining to "after delimitation" in the bill should be removed as there could be an inordinate delay in the implementation of the reservation for women. "How long should we wait to see this bill implemented? It can be easily implemented in the coming parliamentary elections. This bill is not a reservation but an act of removing bias and injustice," said Kanomozhi.

According to Supriya Sule, the bill introduced by the UPA government in 2010 proposed that the quota will take effect immediately after the passage.

"The endless dithering on when will there be the next census, when there will be the next delimitation, will only ensure that the urgent need for reservation for women will be indefinitely delayed yet again," said TMC MP Mahua Moitra.

No 'muscular nationalism' on space mission, says Jairam

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

THE Rajya Sabha witnessed noisy scenes when treasury bench vehemently protested Congress leader Jairam Ramesh's accusation that the Centre "discredited" previous governments for success achieved in space science.

The debate 'India's Glorious Space Journey Marked by Successful Soft Landing of Chandrayaan-III' began well after leader of House Piyush Goyal introduced the subject in the House, giving credit of the success to Prime Minister Narendra Modi's leadership.

When chairman Jagdeep Dhankhar provided the floor to Jairam Ramesh, the Congress leaders congratulated the scientists of ISRO for the landmark success of Chandrayaan-III. Ramesh, however, attacked treasury benches for claims made. "I urge the government to let the Indian space programme be an instrument of development. It should not let be an instrument of muscular nationalism," he said.

He further accused that contributions of country's first prime minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and former PM Indira Gandhi in strengthening the ISRO and space sector cannot be overlooked by anyone . "There is a need for the government to make the House know as who have contributed what so far to space development since independence, rather than fall victim to this new impression that the entire accomplishment in it has been possible as the result of only one individual," said Ramesh in an indirect reference to PM Modi.

He attributed the success of Chandrayaan-II and the Aditya-L1 to competencies, capabilities and capacities created gradually over 60 years.

He asked the government to ensure full liberty and support to India's scientific and technological institutions, adding that scientific institutions must be given independence in professionalism without political interference and intervention.

Highlighting what the previous government had done in the space sector, the Congress leader categorically said, "Despite knowing all these, the Prime Minister and the Leader of the House like to airbrush them away from history, they cannot succeed in it and cannot erased from history."

Quoting some reference, he went on to claim that the first milestone in space sector was created on February 22 in 1962 when an office order was issued to set up the "Indian National Committee for Space Research" (INCSR) and it was followed by the second milestone created with the ISRO on August 15, in1969 and the third milestone in July 1972 July, when Satish Dhawan was brought from foreign and made the chairman of ISRO.

Congress leader Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury on Wednesday pointed out that the words 'secular' and 'socialist' were missing from the Preamble in the copies of Constitution gifted by the government to the Members of Parliament on Tuesday. As many other opposition leaders also hit out at the government over what they called was a "serious issue" and a "crime", Law Minister Arjun Ram Meghwal said the copies carried the original version of the Preamble and that these words were added later after constitutional amendments.

PREZ CALLS WOMEN'S BILL TRANSFORMATIVE

President Droupadi Murmu on Wednesday said the Women's Reservation Bill, which would provide 33 per cent reservation to women in the Lok Sabha and state assemblies will be the most "transformative revolution in our times" for gender justice. Inaugurating a conference of the national human rights institutions of Asia-Pacific in Delhi, she said, "We have ensured a minimum of 33 per cent reservation for women in local bodies' elections. A proposal to provide a similar reservation for women in state assemblies and Parliament is taking shape now."

SC to look into extension of SC/ST quota in Lok Sabha

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Wednesday agreed to examine whether Parliament can use its constituent power to extend the deadline for SC/ST reservation in the Lok Sabha and state assemblies.

Article 334 of the Constitution deals with time period regarding ceasing of reservation guaranteed to SCs/STs and Anglo-Indians in the Lok Sabha and state assemblies.

The reservation was initially for a period of 10 years when the Constitution was enforced in 1950 but was extended from 1969. The Parliament by way of Constitution (104th Amendment) Act in 2019 had fixed 2030 as the deadline.

A five-judge bench led by CJI DY Chandrachud clarified that the court would only confine its examination pertaining to Constitution (104th Amendment) Act in 2019 which fixed 2030 as the deadline to end the reservation for SCs/STs in the Lok Sabha and State Legislative Assemblies and would not go into the removal of reserved seats for the Anglo-Indians.

The bench also comprising Justices AS Bopanna, MM Sundresh, JB Pardiwala and Manoj Mishra fixed November 21 as the date hearing.

"Whether the exercise of the constituent power of amendment to extend the period prescribed for the expiration of reservation under Article 334 of the Constitution is constitutionally valid," the bench said.

Petitioner Ashok Kumar Jain appearing through senior advocate CA Sundaram told the court that grant of repeated extension to certain communities resulted in depriving the electorate of their right to choice of candidates.

'India-Canada military ties to stay intact'

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

THE political standoff is not going to affect the military ties between India and Canada, military officials of the two countries have said. The deputy chief of the Canadian Army will be attending the Indo-Pacific Army Chiefs' Conference (IPACC) next week.

Terming the country an "important partner" in the IPACC journey, Major General Abhinaya Rai, additional director general of strategic planning, said the recent diplomatic row would not impact the two countries. "The Canadian (deputy) chief is coming here along with his delegation. When we look at the relationships with some of our neighbours... We may have had a standoff but we continue to engage them at all levels, be it military or diplomatic. And I am referring directly to China here," Rai said at a curtain-raiser to the conference.

The Canadian Army will be represented by its deputy commander Major General Peter Scott who would join a two-day event beginning September 26.

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau had on Monday alleged that there is a "potential link" between the Indian government and the killing of pro-Khalistan leader Hardeep Singh Nijjar in June.

India on Tuesday rejected the Canadian PM's claim. "We have seen and reject the statement of the Canadian Prime Minister in their Parliament, as also the statement by their foreign minister. Allegations of the Government of India's involvement in any act of violence in Canada are absurd and motivated," said India's foreign ministry.

Along with the 13th edition of the IPACC, the Indian and the United States will also co-host the Indo-Pacific Armies Management Seminar (IPAMS) and Senior Enlisted Leaders Forum (SELF), a three-day conference of Chiefs of Armies and delegates of 35 countries in New Delhi from September 25 to 27. This will see over 150 delegates participate in various plenary and round-table sessions.

The central theme for this forum is "Together for Peace: Sustaining Peace and Stability in the Indo-Pacific Region."

As per the Indian Army, the conference will provide an opportunity for Army chiefs and senior-level leaders from land forces, primarily of the Indo-Pacific region, to exchange ideas and views on security and contemporary issues. "The core effort of the forum will be to promote peace and stability in the Indo-Pacific region," it said.

INDIAN DIASPORA IN CANADA POLARISED, STUDENTS ANXIOUS ABOUT FUTURE

The Indian diaspora is polarized in Canada and the Punjab students planning to leave for that country are a worried lot following the Sikhs For Justice's threat to the Hindus. "We are now seeing full-scale Hinduphobia," said Vijay Jain a spokesperson for Canadian Hindus for Harmony. A student from Jalandhar said he might be denied a student visa. Many students say their parents' money will be wasted. Gurpreet Singh, a consultant, said: "Every year, 40% of international students migrating to Canada are from India. The Canadian government cannot ignore such a substantial source of income. At present, it appears a few students might be affected."

SC to re-examine '98 verdict in JMM bribery case; 7-judge bench formed

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Wednesday agreed to re-examine its 1998 ruling in P V Narasimha Rao case, which granted immunity from prosecution to Members of Parliament (MP) and Members of Legislative Assemblies (MLA) involved in bribe-for-vote in a House. The court referred the same to a seven-judge bench.

The top court was considering arguments on whether the judgement in PV Narasimha Rao case required reference to a larger bench, while dealing with a plea filed by Jharkhand Mukti Morcha leader Sita Soren, who was accused of accepting bribe for voting in favour of a particular candidate in the 2012 Rajya Sabha elections.

The top court had, in the PV Narasimha Rao case, held that legislators enjoyed immunity from prosecution in cases of bribery in relation to parliamentary vote and speech as per Article 105(2) and Article 194(2) of the Constitution, but the same would only be extended if the legislators carried out the act that they took the bribe for.

Calling the issue having significant bearing on morality of polity, a five-judge constitution bench comprising Chief Justice DY Chandrachud, Justices AS Bopanna, MM Sundresh, JB Pardiwala, and Manoj Misra, said, "The purpose of Article 105(2) and Article 194(2) is to ensure that Members of Parliament and of state legislatures are able to discharge duties in an atmosphere of freedom without fear of the consequences that may follow. The object clearly is not to set apart the members of the legislature as persons who wield higher privileges in terms of immunity from the application of the general criminal law of the land, which citizens of the land do not possess."

The bench remarked that although members of state legislature must be free to express their views on the floor of the House without fear of consequences, the object of the Articles was not to prima facie grant them protection from criminal proceedings for violating criminal law.

2 BJP CMs on yatra, but Raje absent

Lack of enthusiasm among cadres attributed to former Rajasthan CM's staying away

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

IN its bid to regain power in Rajasthan, the BJP is making significant efforts in the final leg of its 'Parivartan Sankalp Yatra'. On Wednesday the party roped in two chief ministers and one deputy CM from three BJP-governed states to participate in the Yatra.

But the absence of former chief minister Vasundhara Raje from these Yatras was conspicuous and a focal point of discussions.

While Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma joined the Parivartan Sankalp Yatras in CM Ashok Gehlot's home turf in Jodhpur district, Uttar Pradesh deputy chief minister Keshav Maurya was fielded in Alwar. Uttarakhand CM Pushkar Singh Dhami joined in the Jhalrapatan area of Jhalawar.

In their distinct styles, the three BJP luminaries vehemently attacked the Gandhi family, Congress and the Ashok Gehlot-led government of Rajasthan.

The Assam CM accused the Gandhi family of fostering an atmosphere against Sanatan values in the country and directed a scathing critique towards Sonia Gandhi. Sarma remarked, "Sonia Gandhi made an unfounded statement, including Rajiv Gandhi's in the Women's Reservation Bill. Such actions should not have been taken."

UP deputy CM Maurya was no less critical in Alwar. He particularly targeted what he called the "rampant corruption" in the Gehlot-led Congress government in Rajasthan.

Similarly, Uttarakhand CM Pushkar Singh Dhami criticised the Gehlot government for its alleged mishandling of women's issues. Dhami stated, "Since ndependence, Congress-led governments in Rajasthan and Uttarakhand have consistently worked to erode our cultural identity.

The numerous incidents that have transpired in Rajasthan over the last five years, especially the mistreatment of women, cannot be overlooked, yet the Congress government remains silent."

Despite the BJP's concerted efforts, the level of enthusiasm among party workers during the Parivartan Sankalp Yatras does not match the fervour observed in election year.

The primary reason for this appears to be the absence of CM Vasundhara Raje from these visits, with Raje not even attending the public meeting organised by CM Pushkar Dhami in her home district of Jhalawar.

Notably, this marks the first time in several elections that the BJP is entering the electoral fray without declaring its chief ministerial candidate. Party insiders suggest that this time, the Rajasthan elections will fought on the faces of CM Gehlot versus PM Modi. In this scenario, Raje has not been nominated as the candidate, and this strategy by the BJP high command has yet to yield significant results, with the elections drawing near.

Vasundhara Raje has been synonymous with the BJP in Rajasthan for over two decades, wielding substantial influence within the state organisation and commanding the loyalty of more than half of the BJP MLAs and MPs in the state.

She has never been one to easily bow down and is perceived as a leader who won't tolerate prolonged disrespect. Experts suggest that if necessary, Raje may nothesitate to engage in a one-on-one battle with the party high command.

This scenario has led to confusion among candidates and party workers, torn between attending these rallies and potentially provoking Raje's ire or abstaining and risking displeasure from the high command.

Consequently, the BJP's Parivartan Sankalp Yatra in Rajasthan appears somewhat lacklustre.

However, BJP leaders staunchly denied any internal divisions within the party.

Ahead of Bhagwat's visit, RSS in huddle with UP BJP leaders

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

AS a prelude to a high-level meeting of the RSS functionaries to be presided over by Sangh chief Mohan Bhagwat in Lucknow between September 22 and September 24, senior leaders held a close-door tripartite talks with the UP government, State unit of the BJP here on Tuesday evening.

As per the sources, the meeting focused on better coordination among state BJP brass state government and other related the organisations. The sources claimed that Bhagwat's meeting was part of a 'routine pravas' which he undertakes to assess the activities of various wings of the Sangh.

The meeting in Lucknow was presided over by RSS joint general secretary Arun Kumar who was of the view that a better coordination can be ensured by regular meetings and discussions. Other than him, kshetriya pracharak and prant pracharaks also attended the meeting.

Meanwhile, BJP state unit was represented by UP chief Bhupendra Chaudhury and organisational general secretary Dharam Pal Singh.

While no official statement about the meeting was issued, sources said that the RSS and state BJP leaders discussed the measures which were required to be taken for stepping up the ground-level campaign and consolidating the OBC and the Dalit community in the run-up to national general elections.

In the meeting, all the wings were at consensus that VHP-led 'Shaurya Yatra' should be a success with active participation of all frontal organisations. The VHP would take out the Yatra to mark the construction of Ram Temple in Ayodhya. It was decided that each day of the Yatra, at least two big meetings should be held.

Cong leaders rewarded after crushing defeat?

State Congress leaders have alleged that the party high command does not want any reforms in its Gujarat unit. This comes after the high command recently appointed AICC general secretaries — Ramakrishna Ojha, B M Sandeep and Usha Naidu – to look after several Lok Sabha constituencies in the state. The decision has triggered a heated debate in the party unit. Under the leadership of the three, the Congress managed to win only 17 Assembly seats in one of the poorest electoral performances of the party in recent years. A section of leaders even directly holds the three responsible for the party's defeat.

BJP applies no-repeat formula in local bodies

Keeping 2024 Lok Sabha elections in mind, the BJP has implemented no-repeat formula in Gujarat local bodies. As a result, the party has given new faces a chance. Although the party has appointed new mayors in almost all major cities, Ankita Parmar, the chairman of the Vadodara tehsil panchayat, is making headlines. The primary reason for her getting such as a responsibility at a young age because Parmar is popular on Instagram, a gym trainer. She became a member of Vadodara Taluka in panchayat elections held two-and-a-half years ago.

Infighting in Gujarat BJP refuses to abate

The Sojitra Nagar Palika in Anand is a glaring example of internal BJP strife in Gujarat. According to locals, five BJP members have rebelled in palika, where the Congress has snatched power from the BJP. In this municipality, 15 BJP members and nine Congress members have been elected, the first BJP politician, Rajnikant Patel, was elected president for two and a half years. In the election of office-bearers for the next two and a half years, two BJP and Congress members are abroad, five disgruntled BJP members supported Congress, and the BJP lost control, while on Tuesday BJP's nine councillors in Kalol municipality have given their resignations.

U'khand college ransacked over ragging case

NARENDRA SETHI @ Dehradun

ANGRY over the decision of the college administration over the incident of ragging of a second-year B.Com student in a prestigious college in Dehradun, hundreds of students vandalised the college campus. After the incident of ragging incident, the victim student released a video in this regard and narrated his ordeal, which provoked a large number of students.

As per information received from police sources, "A case of ragging has come to light in Dehradun's College Doon Business School. The victim Aditya Basak is a B.Com second year student and was beaten up badly by senior students in the name of ragging and had brutal marks all over his body".

After the incident, the Station officer of the Selakui police station Mohan Singh has taken suo motu cognizance and registered an FIR against 150 to 200 students and have also sought an explanation from the college administration for hiding the incident. Police believe that apart from ragging, there is also a rivalry between two groups behind this incident.

Monsoon revival likely to cut down impact of drought across country...

JITENDRA CHOUBEY @ New Delhi

THE monsoon has reactivated giving respite to large parts of the country facing a drought-like condition due to erratic monsoon in the past three months. The cyclonic circulation over the Bay of Bengal, near Gujarat and the Western Disturbance have strengthened the lean monsoon, extending the rainy period. Normally, the monsoon period ends on September 30.

The monsoon is largely erratic this year. The Biporjoy cyclone had delayed the formal entry of the monsoon in June and further weakened it. However, the monsoon intensified in July and caused surplus rain. August turned out to be the driest month since 1901.

Overall India has a deficit monsoon of around 10% after the end of three months. Experts say the El Nino phenomenon has impacted the monsoon. This phenomenon is connected to a weaker monsoon.

"It was difficult to predict this year's monsoon," says Mahesh Palawat of Skymet, a private weather service provider.

The reactivation of the monsoon has come as a great respite as it is going to rescue a major part of the country from the prevailing drought-like conditions. The reactivation in the middle of September is causing heavy rain in eastern India.

"The Positive Indian Ocean Dipole (IOD) and moderate intensity of Madden-Julian Oscillation (MJO) are in favour, so it neutralized El Nino impact and reactivated monsoon," says Palawat.

Favoured conditions helped form a low-pressure area over the Bay of Bengal which is likely to cause heavy to very heavy rainfall over East and adjoining central India during the next three days. Also, a cyclonic circulation lies over Kutch and neighbourhood, which extends up to middle tropospheric levels and will bring good rainfall over western Rajasthan, Gujarat and Punjab.

... Meanwhile, reservoir levels dip as Maha drought looms large

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

THE threat of drought is looming over Marathwada region of Maharashtra. As per data of the state water resource department, only 33% of live water storage is ready in all 920 small-big dams of the region against 96% storage last year.

The Jayakwadi dam, one of the biggest in Marathwada that supplies drinking and irrigation water to large parts of the region, has only 33% of live water storage against 96% last year. Another dam, Manjara in the region, has only 11% storage against 50% last year.

As per the Meteorological Department of India, out of the total 36 districts of Maharashtra, 13 received less than average rainfall. These districts are Ahmednagar, Aurangabad, Jalna, Beed, Dharashiv, Solapur, Sangali, Satara, Parbhani, Hingoli, Wasim, Akola, and Amarwati. Six of these districts are from Marathwada region, making them drought-prone.

As per the state water resource department report, the all 2,994 dams of the state have got only 69% livestock of water this year against 88% last year. The Marathwada region's total 920 dams have got the lowest 32% live water storage against 81%.

The state agriculture department in its report stated that out of the 36 districts, the crop production is estimated to be down by 50% in the 16 districts this season. These districts are Nasik, Dhule, Jalgaon, Pune, Ahmednagar, Solapur, Satara, Aurangabad, Jalna, Beed, Latur, Parbhani, Osmanabad, Buldhana, Akola, and Wasim.

"Due to the scarcity of rainfall, the crop growth is stunted, which has a direct impact on the production of crops. The revenue department's mid-season assessment stated there will be a 50% reduction in the production this year. Besides, the remaining crops are under threat of diseases that will impact the production," report said.

Azerbaijan halts Karabakh ops as Armenians surrender

Push for peaceful reintegration of Armenians living in separatist enclave

BAKU

AZERBAIJAN on Wednesday announced it had ended its military operation in the disputed region of Nagorno-Karabakh after separatist Armenian forces agreed to lay down their arms and hold reintegration talks.

Baku and the ethnic Armenian authorities in Karabakh said a ceasefire deal had been brokered by Russian peacekeepers to stop the fighting a day after Azerbaijan launched an "anti-terrorist operation."

The separatists said they had committed to a "full dismantlement" of their forces and the withdrawal of Armenian army units from the region, at the centre of two wars between Armenia and Azerbaijan since the collapse of the Soviet Union.

Azerbaijan's defence ministry said that "all weapons and heavy armaments are to be surrendered" under the supervision of Russia's 2,000-strong peacekeeping force on the ground. Both sides said talks on reintegrating the breakaway territory into the rest of Azerbaijan would be held on Thursday in Yevlakh.

Hours after the ceasefire was announced, Azerbaijani presidential foreign policy advisor Hikmet Hajiyev told reporters Baku promised "safe passage" for the separatists who had laid down their arms.

There was no need for the UN Security Council meeting on the crisis that France had called for on Tuesday, he added.

"Azerbaijan's agenda is about peaceful reintegration of Karabakh Armenians, and Azerbaijan also supports the normalisation process between Armenia and Azerbaijan," Hajiyev added.

Charles Michel, president of the EU's Council of Europe, urged Baku to ensure the safety of Karabakh Armenians.

The stunning collapse of separatist resistance represents a major victory for Azerbaijan's President Ilham Aliyev in his quest to bring Armenian-majority Nagorno-Karabakh back under Baku's control.

Jubilant residents in Azerbaijan's capital expressed hope the deal heralded a definitive victory in -- and the end of -- the decades-long conflict.

"I was very happy with this news. Finally, the war is over," 67-year-old pensioner Rana Ahmedova, told AFP.

"This means the end of Armenia," said the 37-year-old businessman Elbrus Sahverdiyev, echoing the deep-rooted feud being the two nations.

In Yerevan, Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan said in a televised address that fighting on the ground appeared to have largely subsided and insisted it was "very important" the ceasefire hold. AFP

U.S. CREATES 20K-STRONG CLIMATE CORPS

WASHINGTON

AFTER being thwarted by Congress, US President Joe Biden used executive powers to launch a new "Climate Corps" on Wednesday that will serve as a major green jobs training programme for the youth.

In an announcement on Wednesday, the White House said the programme will employ about 20,000 young adults who will build trails, plant trees, help install solar panels and do other work to boost conservation and help prevent catastrophic wildfires. The climate corps had been proposed in early versions of the sweeping climate law approved last year but was jettisoned amid strong opposition from Republicans and concerns about cost.

Democrats and environmental advocacy groups never gave up on the plan and pushed Biden in recent weeks to issue an executive order authorising what the White House now calls the American Climate Corps.

The programme is modelled after the Civilian Conservation Corps, created in the 1930s by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, a Democrat, as part of the New Deal.

"This summer, our country saw heat waves, wildfires and floods that destroyed communities, uprooted families and claimed hundreds of lives," the Sunrise Movement and other organisations wrote on Monday in a letter to Biden's White House.

"While previous executive orders and legislation under your administration demonstrate tremendous progress toward meeting our Paris climate goals and your campaign promises, this summer has made clear that we must be as ambitious as possible in tackling the great crisis of our time," the groups wrote.

More than 50 Democratic lawmakers, including Massachusetts Senator Ed Markey and New York Representative Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, also encouraged Biden to create a climate corps, saying in a separate letter on Monday that the climate crisis demands a whole-of-government response at an unprecedented scale. AFP

Sunak waters down UK's green pledges

LONDON

THE UK looked set to backtrack on Wednesday on policies aimed at achieving net zero emissions by 2050 with Prime Minister Rishi Sunak expected to water down some of the government's green commitments. The move comes amid growing concern over the potential financial cost of the government's policies to achieve net zero carbon emissions by mid-century.

Rishi Sunak

A general election is expected next year and Sunak's Conservative Party is trailing in the polls behind the Labour opposition amid a cost-of-living crisis that has seen food and housing costs spiral.

The British prime minister will deliver a speech at Downing Street later on Wednesday.

According to British media reports, the premier in particular wants to water down plans to phase out gas boilers from 2035 and delay the ban on the sale of new petrol and diesel cars due in 2030.

In a statement late on Tuesday he said that while the government was committed to the net zero target, it would try to achieve it "in a better, more proportionate way".

The Conservative's narrow win in a west London by-election in July — largely put down to a campaign against the expansion of a vehicle pollution toll zone in the capital by Labour mayor Sadiq Khan – triggered calls within the party to rethink climate commitments. AFP

One-yr-old boy dies of fentanyl poisoning at daycare in US

NEW YORK

A New York woman is facing murder and drug charges after a one-year-old boy died from fentanyl poisoning at the daycare she operated and three other children became seriously ill, officials said on Tuesday.

Grei Mendez, 36, was arrested over the weekend after emergency paramedics responded on Friday to reports of unconscious children at the Divino Nino Daycare in the Bronx.

Police said a large quantity of fentanyl was found at the facility, including a kilogram of the drug stored on top of children's playmats. Four kids under the age of three were hospitalised and one of them died.

Mendez and Carlisto Acevedo Brito, 41, a tenant in the apartment where the daycare was located, face New York state charges of murder, drug possession and intent to distribute. They were slapped with federal narcotics charges in an additional indictment unsealed on Tuesday.

A mother of four with no prior arrests, Mendez has worked in restaurants and as a home health aide. Agencies

US announces $225 mn to support democracies

NEW YORK

THE United States on Wednesday announced $225 million in investments to support emerging democracies in the face of a rise in autocracies around the world.

US Secretary of State Antony Blinken and Samantha Power, administrator of the US Agency for International Development (USAID), were to announce the assistance at an event on Wednesday.

A major part of the package will be $110 million in private-sector projects for Nepal, where the political system has been stabilising since a peace deal in 2006 ended a civil war claiming more than 17,000 lives.

The assistance to Nepal, secured by the US International Development Finance Corporation, which leads development efforts through private investors, will include support for small businesses and sustainable transportation in the Himalayan nation.

The assistance will also involve $145 million in US government funding that features support for job creation as well as accountable public finances and other areas seen as key to democracy.

The package also includes grants, including from the Ford Foundation and Rockefeller Foundation, which will support civil society groups, rural electricity and climate projects in countries that include Moldova, Tanzania and Zambia.

"The United States is dedicated to ensuring that democracy delivers for all," USAID said. The assistance aims to "deliver essential services and bring about tangible progress for citizens in countries experiencing democratic openings," it said.

Blinken and Power launched the "Democracy Delivers" project last year as the Ukraine war raises alarm that democracies are under threat from authoritarian states such as Russia and China.

A number of nascent democracies have suffered major setbacks in recent years, with the military in Niger sacking the democratically-elected government in July. AFP

Strip Russia of veto power: Zelenskyy

UNITED NATIONS

UKRAINIAN President Volodymyr Zelenskyy on Wednesday told the UN Security Council that Russia's invasion of his country was "criminal" and said that Moscow should be stripped of its veto power on the powerful UN body.

"Most of the world recognises the truth about this war," Zelenskyy said as Russia's UN ambassador sat before him. "It is a criminal and unprovoked aggression by Russia against our nation aimed at seizing Ukraine's territory and resources."

Earlier, UN chief briefed the 15-member council and Zelenskyy, making his first in-person appearance before the UN's most powerful body, followed him. US Secretary of State Antony Blinken was No 11 on the list, and Russia's Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov was scheduled to follow him.

Zelenskyy, addressing the council in the meeting's early minutes, accused Russia of committing a "criminal and unprovoked aggression" that violated both the norms of war and the UN Charter itself. Lavrov was not sitting at Russia's seat as Zelenskyy spoke; it was occupied by Vasily Nebenzia, the country's UN ambassador.

The Ukrainian leader hadn't even begun talking when the verbal fireworks began.

Nebenzia protested the decision to allow the Ukrainian leader to speak. He said Albanian President Edi Rama, this month's council president, was trying to turn the meeting into "a one-man stand-up show," adding that it will be "nothing more than a spectacle" — a dig at Zelenskyy's past as a comedian. Agencies

US President Joe Biden and Israeli PM Benjamin Netanyahu hold talks | AFP

Israeli PM says historic peace possible with Saudi Arabia

NEW YORK

ISRAELI Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said an ambitious US-backed deal to normalize relations with Saudi Arabia was possible, as he met President Joe Biden in New York.

"I think that under your leadership, Mr President, we can forge a historic peace between Israel and Saudi Arabia," Netanyahu told reporters, adding that it could "go a long way" to achieve peace between Israel and the Palestinians.

"Such a peace would go a long way for us to advance the end of the Arab-Israeli conflict, achieve reconciliation between the Islamic world and the Jewish state and advance a genuine peace...."

Biden and Netanyahu tried to smooth over months of tensions as they met for the first time on Wednesday since the Israeli's re-election in December. The two shook hands in front of US and Israeli flags at the start of the meeting, held on the sidelines of the UN General Assembly in New York after Biden withheld an invitation to the White House.

Biden said he would raise "hard issues" with Netanyahu including upholding democratic values, amid criticism of the hard-right Israeli government's controversial judicial reforms.

"Today, we're going to discuss some of the hard issues, that is, upholding democratic values that lie at the heart of our partnership," Biden told reporters. Biden extended an olive branch by suggesting a meeting at the White House in the coming months. AFP

AI both a risk and opportunity for journalists, finds UK study

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE IS BOTH A THREAT AND AN OPPORTUNITY FOR JOURNALISM, WITH MORE THAN HALF OF THOSE SURVEYED SAYING THEY HAD CONCERNS ABOUT ITS ETHICAL IMPLICATIONS ON THEIR WORK

BOON OR BANE?

Journalists recognised the time-saving benefits of AI with tasks like interview transcription. But they also noted the need for AI content to be checked by a human for potential bias and inaccuracy. Challenges regarding AI integration were more pronounced for newsrooms in the global south

LARGE-SCALE SURVEY

The study, carried out by the London School of Economic's JournalismAI initiative, surveyed 105 news organisations from 46 countries about their use of AI and associated technologies between April and July

> Charlie Beckett, report co-author and project director

85% of respondents had experimented with generative AI such as ChatGPT for tasks including writing summaries and generating headlines, 60% said they also had reservations

60% of respondents noted their concern about the ethical implications of AI on journalistic values including accuracy, fairness and other aspects of journalism

75% of respondents use AI in at least one of the areas across the news value chain of news gathering, production and distribution, the survey found

TEHRAN

IRAN'S parliament on Wednesday approved a bill to impose heavier penalties on women who refuse to wear the Islamic headscarf in public and those who support them.

The 70-item bill extends punishments to business owners who serve women not wearing the mandatory headscarf, known as hijab, and activists who organise against it. Violators could face up to 10 years in prison if the offense occurs in an organised way.

Those seen "half-naked in public spaces" would also face lengthy jail terms.

Women driving cars without a hijab or wearing "inappropriate clothing" would be fined five million rials, or around $10.

The draft law also imposes fines against anyone "promoting nudity" or "mocking the hijab" in the media.

Business owners whose female staff break the dress rules could be banned from exiting the country.

Iran's legislature approved "the 'Support for the Culture of Hijab and Chastity' bill for a trial period of three years," IRNA reported.

Out of the 290 lawmakers, 152 voted in favour, 35 against, whereas seven abstained, with the remainder absent. The bill still requires approval by the Guardian Council.

The move came just days after the anniversary of the death of Mahsa Amini, a 22-year-old woman who had been detained by the morality police for violating the country's dress code. Her death in custody ignited months of protests in which many called for the overthrow of Iran's theocracy.

The demonstrations sparked by Amini's death on Sept. 16, 2022 died down early this year following a heavy crackdown on dissent in which more than 500 protesters were killed and over 22,000 detained. Agencies

HDFC, RIL shares drag down mkt over 1%

HDFC falls on rating downgrade

HDFC Bank fell after Nomura downgraded its rating to Neutral and cut target price of the stock to ₹1,800 from ₹1,920

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

DOMESTIC equity market benchmark indices tumbled over 1% each on Wednesday as shares of index heavyweight HDFC Bank plunged by 4% to close at ₹1,564 apiece following rating downgrade by global brokerage Nomura.

The market was also dragged down by another heavyweight, Reliance Industries (RIL), as its shares fell 2.2% to close at ₹2,382.

Sensex fell 1.18% to close the session at 66,800 while Nifty50 ends at 19,901, down 1.15%. Investors lost ₹2.38 lakh crore as the market capitalisation of listed firms on the BSE fell to ₹320.61 lakh crore. Besides sharp sell-off in HDFC and RIL, market remained under pressure due to rising US bond yields, dollar and elevated oil prices. There were concerns over the Federal Reserve policy meeting (to be out late Wednesday), which will decide the future trajectory of interest rate hikes. The market is expecting a hawkish tone in the meeting

HDFC Bank fell after Nomura downgraded its rating to Neutral and cut the target price of the stock to ₹1,800 from ₹1,920 earlier following an analyst call by the country's largest private lender to brief about the merged entity. The brokerage expects margin pressure and concern about asset quality post-merger of HDFC twins. Nomura said HDFC's net interest margins (NIM) could see pressure over the next two to three quarters as the lender's Q2FY24 opening book NIMs are at 2% versus 2.7% in Q1.

Nomura highlighted four negative surprises from the analyst meeting- 1) net worth adjustments have a negative 4% impact on FY24F BVPS (book value per share), 2) NIM cuts of 25bp in FY24F and 15-20bp in FY25-26F on excess liquidity, accounting adjustments; 3) higher cost-to-income due to accounting changes and 4) a sharp uptick in NPAs (non-performing assets) in HDFC's corporate loan book.

Parth Nyati, founder at Tradingo, said, "Global markets exhibited caution in anticipation of the upcoming FOMC meeting. Factors such as rising US bond yields, rupee weakness, surge in crude oil prices, and selling by foreign institutional investors (FIIs) further contributed to the challenges faced by our markets."

Not shutting down, ready to give up mkt share: Akasa

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

AKASA AIR chief executive officer Vinay Dube has told employees of the airline that they are not shutting down following the sudden resignation of 43 pilots, which has forced it to cancel about 24 flights every day.

Dubey, however, said they are ready to give up market share in the short term as they are here for the long run. Akasa's share in domestic air traffic fell from 5.2% in July to 4.2% in August 2023, according to official data.

Just 13 months in operations, Akasa recently faced a major blow after dozens of its pilots decided to leave the airline without serving the mandatory notice period. A number of these pilots, who are said to have joined Tata Group-run Air India Express, said Akasa management violated contracts by altering the salary structure. In an internal email to employees, Dube confirmed that they faced disruption in its operations but urged employees not to be alarmed or distracted by media headlines, especially those that are speculative and claim that the airline will shut down.

Airline's domestic air traffic declines significantly

Akasa Air chief executive officer Vinay Dube said that they are ready to give up market share in the short term as they are here for the long run. The company's share in the domestic air traffic declined from 5.2% in July to 4.2% in August 2023, according to official data

This assurance by Dube comes after flyers and employees of Go First were left stranded following the grounding of Go First in May this year. An aviation industry expert said Akasa management should fill up its pilot shortage on an emergency basis as it faces competition from two giants (IndiGo and Air India) who would take no time in snatching traffic from the new airline.

"This is a major setback for Akasa and it may force the airline to pause its aggressive expansion plans," the expert said requesting anonymity. Meanwhile, Akasa said they have been designated as an International scheduled operator by the aviation ministry. This would allow them to start international operations before the end of this year. Dube also told employees that legal action has been initiated against the pilots who left without serving their mandatory contractual notice period. Akasa has already approached the Delhi High Court for about ₹22 crore as compensation from the pilots for the loss of revenue on account of the grounding and cancellation of flights. The airline is also facing a large number of complaints from flyers which is impacting its reputation.

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

FRANCE'S TotalEnergies will invest $300 million in a new venture with Adani Green Energy Limited (AGEL), a renewable energy platform of Adani Group.

AGEL, in an exchange filing, has announced it has entered a binding agreement with TotalEnergies to create a joint venture, equally owned by both companies, with a 1,050 MW portfolio. This portfolio will comprise a mix of already operational (300 MW), under construction (500 MW), and under development assets (250 MW), with a blend of solar and wind power. As per the company, AGEL will contribute its assets to the joint venture, and TotalEnergies will provide an equity investment of $300 million to support their development.

"We are delighted to extend our long-term partnership with TotalEnergies in AGEL. The investment will strengthen the role played by AGEL in India's glide path to decarbonisation. This will help deliver our vision to have 45 GW renewable energy capacity by 2030," said Gautam Adani, Adani Group Chairman.

Cos may get 1-yr to comply with data protection Act

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE government is expected to provide a maximum of one year for entities to comply with the norms of the Digital Personal Data Protection Act 2023.

The government will also establish Data Protection Board and issue guidelines for eight rules, including consent management, within next month or 45 days.

"Once we receive submissions from industry stakeholders, we will make a decision regarding the transition period for companies. However, one thing is certain: We will not grant two years or 18 months of time as demanded by industry representatives," said Rajeev Chandrasekhar, Minister of State for Electronics and IT.

While speaking with industry representatives from tech companies such as Meta, Lenovo, Dell, Netflix, and others, the minister said the rules would be implemented in a graded manner. He added that large technology companies such as Meta, Twitter or any others would be given less time to comply, while start-ups and MSMEs would be granted more time to adopt the law.

"These small start-ups and MSMEs require additional time to adapt to the new law. While I don't believe that large companies like Meta or Twitter need more time to comply, as they are already well-equipped and technically capable of adopting the new law," added the minister.

The Digital Personal Data Protection Bill, 2023, was passed by both Houses of Parliament in the Monsoon session. The Act mandates to protect privacy of Indian citizens.

According to the law, data collected from citizens should only be used for the purpose for which it was collected, and the amount of data collected should be limited to what is necessary.

The act also proposes a penalty of up to ₹250 crore for the entities that misuse or fail to protect the digital data of individuals. In case of any grievances, individuals will have the option to approach the Data Protection Board, which will process complaints in accordance with the norms of the act.

Arjun Mohan elevated as Byju's India CEO

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

IN a bid to strengthen its leadership, edtech firm Byju's has elevated Arjun Mohan, who was a part of the founding team, as the CEO of India operations.

This move comes at a time when the company is struggling with many challenges. He succeeds Mrinal Mohit, founding partner and the outgoing head of India business at the edtech firm. Mohan last served as the chief business officer as he re-joined the company recently. He spent last three months working closely with the founder and Group CEO Byju Raveendran. Mohan spearheaded UpGrad before joining Byju's. Byju Raveendran said, "Mrinal's contributions have left an indelible mark on our organisation." He added, "Arjun's expertise will help our turnaround efforts and strengthen our position in the global edtech landscape."

The new India CEO Arjun Mohan said, "I return to Byju's today, when technology is poised to play an even more important role in making education truly personalised. While challenges are plenty, I am ready to play my role in helping Byju's empower our current and future generations."

Recently, many top-level executives left the edtech firm, and the company also recruited many executives including Infosys veteran Richard Lobo as an exclusive advisor to help transform the firm's Human Resources function. Former SBI chairman Rajnish Kumar and former CFO of Infosys TV Mohandas Pai recently joined the company's newly constituted Advisory Council.

Byju's is likely to repay the $1.2 billion term loan B within the next six months.

Joblessness rate at 42% among graduates under 25

MONIKA YADAV @ New Delhi

DESPITE witnessing progress in various aspects of India's labour market, the unemployment rate has reached 42% among graduates under 25 years, as per the State of Working India 2023 report released by Azim Premji University.

"Post-Covid, the unemployment rate is lower than it was pre-Covid, for all education levels. But it remains above 15% for graduates and more worryingly it touches 42% for graduates under 25 years," the report said.

As per the report, after stagnating since the 1980s, the share of workers with regular wage or salaried work started increasing in 2004, going from 18% to 25% for men and 10% to 25% for women.

"Between 2004 and 2017, nearly 3 million regular wage jobs were created annually. Between 2017 and 2019 this jumped to 5 million per year. Since 2019, the pace of regular wage jobs creation has decreased due to the growth slowdown and the pandemic," it added.

The report underscored the critical importance of addressing the weak connection between economic growth and job creation. It reveals that non-farm GDP growth and non-farm employment growth have shown no correlation since the 1990s. "However, between 2004 and 2019, on average, growth translated to decent employment. This was interrupted by the pandemic which caused larger growth in distress employment," it added.

Though the gender-based earnings disparities have reduced, gap remained constant since 2017. In 2004, salaried women workers earned 70% of what men earned. By 2017, the gap had reduced, and women earned 76% of what men did, as per the report. The report highlighted the fact that even in the smallest firm sizes, SC and ST workers are under-represented compared to their share in the overall workforce. Even more significantly, SC and ST owners are barely represented among firms employing over 20 workers.

Volley ball for India vs Korea

Spikers put aside problems plaguing the sport back home to upset medal contenders

An elated Indian team after beating South Korea on Wednesday | SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

VISHNU PRASAD @ Bengaluru

FOR India's Asian Games contingent, it was the first of what everyone will hope is a long list of pleasant surprises. For Indian volleyball, it marked some light at the end of what has been a long tunnel.

In one of the best results in Indian volleyball in quite a while, the men's team downed South Korea 3-2 in a thrilling encounter at the Linping Sports Centre Gymnasium in Hangzhou on Wednesday. For a scale of what an upset that is, India is ranked 73rd in the world while South Korea are 27th and silver-medallists at the 2018 Asian Games. In fact, so good have they been at this level that the last time they exited the Asiad without a medal was in 1962. In contrast, India have not won an Asian Games medal in 37 years.

On Wednesday though, all those numbers mattered for little as the Indians matched their opponents spike for spike, block for block. The first set, even though it eventually ended 27-25 in the Koreans' favour, showed that India were up for the fight. They mounted a great comeback in the second, leading throughout and overcoming a minor hiccup towards the end to take it 29-27. The third set saw India dominating throughout. They built up a sizable lead right at the start and held it en route a 25-22 score. The Koreans won the fourth set but India held their nerves to take the fifth 17-15, even saving a match point in the process.

The result is a huge boost for Indian volleyball, which, in recent years, had been dogged by factional fights, legal issues and irregular scheduling of tournaments. Even now, the sport in India does not have a governing body. The squad for the Asian Games was picked by an ad-hoc committee constituted by the Indian Olympic Association (IOA).

The committee had picked a relatively young squad with a couple of veterans. That combination of youth and experience worked wonders with the veterans taking charge of the situation whenever youthful exuberance threatened to fizzle out into nerves. One such instance was towards the end of the second set when India allowed Korea to close down a gap towards the end. In went 37-year-old setter Mohan Ukkrapandian and he promptly contributed to the lead being seized again.

"We had a very good match today," Ukkrapandian told this daily. "We were very well prepared. There were many ups and downs, but we were encouraging each other throughout the game. We were telling each other that somehow we had to win the match, somehow we had to do better. And in the end, the boys did very well. We did today because of the unity in the team."

Another treasure trove of experience at the team's disposal is in the form of assistant coach, former India captain and Arjuna Awardee Tom Joseph. Tom believes the display was an indication of what India can do with the right kind of preparation. "We got nearly two months to prepare for the Asian Games," he said. "There was the Asian Men's Volleyball Cup during that period which allowed us to play a lot of matches against top opponents. Then, we were able to come to China on the 16th itself and get used to the conditions. In India, we don't often play in air-conditioned arenas, so it was useful to train in such settings and get used to the balls as well."

Tom also believes that the result is a huge confidence-boost for the team. "Everyone contributed today," he said. "We were able to read our opponents' game, make tactical changes and implement it effectively on the court. If we maintain this level of performance, we can go a long way in the tournament."

'If I'm remembered as one of India's best, it'll be an honour'

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @ Chennai

OLYMPIC medallist. Asian Games winner. Commonwealth Games medallist. More than 300 India caps. Individual honours. Civilian awards from the Indian government. When you have won the accolades that PR Sreejesh has won, it's natural to wonder what sort of legacy the 35-year-old wants to leave behind. How does he want to be remembered? "If people remember me as one of the best goalkeepers the country has ever produced, that will be a huge honour for me," was his response. The custodian, currently in Hangzhou for the Asian Games, spoke to this daily on a number of subjects. Excerpts...

■ On playing int'l games at Chennai, his home ground

When the city hosted the Asia Cup in 2007, I have memories of watching it from the stands. For me, it's a home ground because I have played most of my domestic matches there. I spent 20 years in Chennai. It made me so happy that people came and spoke to me in their language. They felt comfortable around me, clicked pictures, asked autographs... it was nice. I have played matches in Odisha, Delhi but it was one of my first international games in South India. It was a very big honour for me personally.

■ On playing his 300th match during the Asian Champions Trophy & how he has changed

Big difference; I was very different when I was making my debut. I changed my basics, have learned a lot of things, changed the way I approach the ball, the way I stand even. 17 years... in this journey of mine, I have met a lot of coaches. When all of them tell you a lot of things, they naturally contribute to your growth and that's what happened with me. But I have always tried to develop my own style and improve because when you start to develop your own style, it helps you to improve yourself rather than looking at someone to improve you. When you try to develop your own version of goalkeeping, then it's easy for you to make the changes and improve.

■ On if the evolution made him a vocal goalkeeper

I have never been captain cool; always been like that (vocal). There's an understanding between goalkeepers and defenders. The defenders are closest to me and those people need my shout, they want me to shout at them. They want to hear my noise so they realise that they are in the right position. Even in training sessions, I try to be myself; shouting, screaming and getting aggressive so that they are used to it. If I don't do it, they are like 'aare, something bad is happening with us or something bad is happening with Sreebhai'. Now, I'm a super senior. I try to control that a lot because my team members are like 3rd or 4th generation so if I shout at them, they may sink into their shell. I try to keep that in my mind.

PR Sreejesh will be playing in his third Asian Games at Hangzhou | INSTAGRAM

■ On being a super senior in the side and the legacy he would like to leave behind

I have never thought of leaving a legacy behind; just playing my best. Whenever I take to the field, want to be a better version than what I was yesterday. In this age, when you are playing good, it gives hope that you can play so long. I have heard a lot about Dhanraj Pillay. He has played four Olympics, four World Cups, four Asiad and so on... that's a great thing. It truly is hard for a player to stay at the elite level for such a long time. That's the dream for all athletes. I made my debut in 2006 which is a great thing for me. If people remember me as one of the best goalkeepers India has ever produced, that will be an honour for me.

■ On his very unique side to side view of the action compared to the outfield players and how he uses his vantage point to analyse pattern of play under coach Craig Fulton

Every coach has their own style. When Craig came, he didn't change a lot but he tried to add something to the system. On the field being the goalkeeper, our job is like being a coach. You know the system, style, defensive structure... you just make sure the players are doing the right things on the field so that the ball stays away from you. Being the goalkeeper, that's ultimately what I want. Sometimes, it's your responsibility to guide them in the right way.

■ On his partnership with Krishan Pathak & how he sees the shared responsibility (India rotates their keeper per quarter)

It's always good to share a field with the second goalkeeper. When I started, it was always about the first goalkeeper. The entire tournament, the second goalkeeper would be on the bench. Nowadays, hockey is too fast, there's more power in the shot and the sticks have changed. The chances of a goalkeeper getting injured has increased so make sure the second goalkeeper is getting sufficient match time... giving them enough opportunities given them more experience and confidence.

Women in Blue seek Asiad glory on debut

GOMESH S @ Chennai

WHEN the India women's cricket team stood on the podium, receiving their silver medal at the 2022 Commonwealth Games, it was a one of a kind experience for the players. They had never been a part of anything like this before. Through the event, the conversations were around engaging and spending time with athletes from other disciplines, getting to know them and cheering for them. This time, the Asian Games in Hangzhou is different. They already know what to expect and how the Games village is and so on. Some of the players were even seen cheering for the Indian football team during their opening match against China.

Now, unlike other disciplines, cricket, especially Indian cricket, has often steered clear of multi-sport events over the past two decades. The tide, however, is changing. After making their debut in the CWG, the women's team will be taking part for the first time in the Asian event when they take the field against Malaysia in the quarterfinal on Thursday. Their second-string men's team will do the same in October. With the ongoing talks to include cricket in the 2028 Los Angeles Olympics, understandably, the team with the biggest diaspora and fan base around the globe, India, are now the centre of attraction in other multi-sport events.

Smriti Mandhana will lead India in the first two games at the event | TWITTER

From the players' and former players' point of view, there is more to it. Not long ago, the women's team were not getting their due attention and opportunities — there is still a long road to travel ahead to attain an egalitarian ecosystem — but things have changed for the better. The number of matches, the match-fee for international players and the Women's Premier League are proof that women's cricket is the most promising commodity in the market and is only going to get bigger in the coming years. Former cricketer and coach feels the impact of playing in the Asian Games is massive. "You look at the opportunities that have happened in the last two years for Indian cricket, overall, if you see. There is nothing like winning a medal. We have always seen in different fields, whether its athletics or weightlifting, javelin throw because of Neeraj Chopra. Now, we see the women and men's cricket team being a part of this, it is always a pride. We have been talking over a period of time that we need more tournaments, exposure and now we are getting it. And it is happening at the right time, everything is falling in place. WPL, Asian Games, so much to look forward to, especially for young cricketers to take up this game professionally," said Nooshin.

India are probably the strongest team but there are challenges. Their captain Harmanpreet Kaur is suspended by ICC for two games and Smriti Mandhana will lead in her absence before the former returns for the final. Pakistan are coming off an ODI series win against South Africa and Sri Lanka beat New Zealand in the same format. On a given day, both could outplay India in the shortest format. And the teams will be playing three knockout games on the trot if they go all the way. "The positive side about it is that we are aware of it," says Nooshin.

Football: India face B'desh in must-win game

HANGZHOU: Battered by hosts China in their opening match after playing without any training session, India will be up against a tricky Bangladesh side in their must-win group match in the Asian Games football competition here on Thursday. A rag-tag Indian team reached late Monday evening and played its first match without proper rest and sleep and was hammered 1-5 by China on Tuesday. They need to beat Bangladesh to remain in the fray for the knock-outs.

City survive scare, Barca produce five-star show

AGENCIES @ Paris

MANCHESTER City overcame an early scare to get their Champions League defence off to a solid start on Tuesday while Barcelona cruised past Antwerp.

Kylian Mbappe helped Paris-Saint Germain to an opening win on a breathless beginning to the group stage of Europe's top club competition. Newcastle returned to the high table of European football for the first time in two decades with a battling goalless draw against AC Milan at the San Siro and Lazio grabbed an equaliser deep in injury time to hold Atletico Madrid.

In Manchester, Pep Guardiola's City were stunned when Red Star's Osman Bukari opened the scoring in first half stoppage time. But Julian Alvarez continued his sparkling early season form by levelling just two minutes after the break.

Manchester City's Julian Alvarez gets past Red Star's goalkeeper Omri Glazer | AP

The Argentine then got some help from Red Star goalkeeper Omri Glazer as he flapped at Alvarez's free-kick to allow the ball to fly into the far corner. Rodri rounded off a 3-1 win with a composed finish 17 minutes from time.

"If we scored two goals early in the beginning it would've been completely different," said Guardiola, who was frustrated at his side's finishing. "Having 22 (first-half) shots on goal means you are playing really good. It has to be the responsibility of the people in front to score the goals."

City are next away to RB Leipzig, who share top place in Group E after a 3-1 win at Swiss champions Young Boys. Tuesday's results: Group E: Feyenoord 2-0 Celtic; Lazio 1-1 Atletico Madrid. Group F: AC Milan 0-0 Newcastle United; PSG 2-0 Borussia Dortmund. Group G: Young Boys 1-3 RB Leipzig; Manchester City 3-1 Red Star Belgrade. Group H: Barcelona 5-0 Antwerp; Shakhtar Donetsk 1-3 Porto.

ANTIM Panghal shocked reigning champion Olivia Dominique Parrish en route to the World Championship semifinals, but the young grappler's giant-killing run was halted in the last-four stage, leaving her fighting for a bronze medal and a Paris Olympic quota place here on Wednesday. Panghal, the 53kg grappler, lost the semifinal bout to world No.23 Vanesa Kaladzinskaya — a Belarusian competing as a neutral athlete — on technical points 5-4. But the Indian can still earn an Olympic quota if she wins the bronze-medal match or emerges triumphant in the bout between the losers of the bronze-medal contest.

Underlining her growth and a smooth transition from the junior to senior circuit, the two-time U20 champion won the first three bouts of the day to enter the semifinal even as other Indian contenders bit the dust in their respective categories.

'Namaste India': Reigning champ Bagnaia, Martin arrive

ANMOL GURUNG @ Chennai

Until Tuesday, there were some concerns ahead of the upcoming MotoGP event in India. Some of the riders, including eight-time world champ Marc Marquez, were yet to get their visas for the premier two-wheeler event which is set to be held in the country for the first time ever.

Barely twenty-fours later, the mood seems to have changed drastically. The riders have started flocking in and the buzz is back. Some of them are getting a feel of the culture in the country and have started exploring the city already. 'Namaste (Indian flag),' Aleix Espargaro of Aprilia Racing Team posted on X, along with two pictures — an auto rickshaw and a 'selfie' in front of the Lotus Temple in New Delhi.

MotoGP championship leader Francesco Bagnaia is another giant of the sport who has arrived. The reigning world champ, who rides for Ducati Lenovo Team, was at the paddock, getting a feel of the Buddh International Circuit in Greater Noida. Bagnaia's closest rival, Jorge Martin of Pramac Racing Team, also seemed upbeat. "Amazing place! Amazing track. Happy to be here," Martin posted on social media. Martin, who won the last recent San Marino Grand Prix, wasted no time and could be seen cycling on the track, getting all the data and information that could potentially help him attain maximum points this Sunday.

Spanish race Jorge Martin cycles on the track in Greater Noida on Wednesday

Martin's assessment is a massive encouragement for the organisers and everyone else as the track, formerly used for Formula One racing, was modified to fit the standards of MotoGP.

Riders' safety is the primary objective of all stakeholders involved in organising the Grand Prix. Even the MotoGP seems to be pleased with the progress in place. "We want to say a huge thank you to the governments of Uttar Pradesh and India and everyone who's worked so hard to get us to the Indian #IndianGP!"

Tolkien's novel

The Hobbit, published on this day in 1937, is a story where characters and plot threads in the published text are different from what JRR Tolkien wrote

THE PLOT

RECOGNITION

The Hobbit received critical acclaim. It was nominated for a Carnegie Medal, and won a prize for best juvenile fiction from the New York Herald Tribune

STORY ORIGINS

The Hobbit began in the oral tradition, a story that Tolkien imparted to his sons. The genesis of the story was the opening line, scrawled on a piece of paper

A curated guide to happenings in the city

Concept, direction: Sanjay Garg; photography: Dolly Debi @ doblist; videography, edit: TITO@theurbanennui

Textile designer Sanjay Garg has an unusual campaign video for his new collection, but the world's still buzzing over 'that' Akshata Murty saree

FACT, FICTION & A FIRST LADY

PARAMITA GHOSH

'SUZEGAD Festive 2023' is the name of the game – and collection – that textile designer Sanjay Garg is playing with those who love his handloom label, Raw Mango (RM). 'Susegad' is the Goan word and condition of being relaxed and laidback. In the campaign video of this new collection, Pedro Figueiredo, a Goan, is getting ready to marry Fiza Jha, a young girl with inter-faith parents – an elaborate fiction like the ones that Garg usually weaves around his collections just before he announces them on Instagram, and before the clothes move into his stores' shelves. The 'wedding photograph' is also a constructed setting. In it, Pedro, 'the bridegroom', has eschewed formal tuxes and a stiff white shirt for a brocade lungi; Fiza, 'the bride' is wearing the brand's saree, a knotted Kunbi style saree, leaving the shoulder bare. On her head is a Balinese crown. And flanked by pink candles, on fine cutlery sit slices of pizza, as Susegad it can possibly be for a wedding banquet. Or you could call it a wedding feast heresy.

At his Chhattarpur studio, Garg, speaking to CE, explains the look of the collection drawn from Goan life and how it gels with his brand's aesthetic. Garg doesn't believe in binaries. "I'm drawn to Goa as part of it is a melting pot of cultures. The campaign is communicating that it is okay to be identity-agnostic. The characters seem to be saying that 'let's not go crazy if it's a wedding, why do we need a priest for rituals, why can't my friend do it?"

Cheese at a wedding

The 'Suzegad' vibe, that is a laidback vibe, considers a wedding as a dinner with friends. A wedding not with a hundred guests to stress over and a wedding dinner not with thali meals but one that can have 30 types of cheese. "The collection is a celebration of plurality, I don't believe in belonging to one culture," says Garg. The groom in the campaign video, for instance, wraps around his waist around a Raw Mango aubergine saree and wears it like an Indonesian lungi paired with a white shirt. The clothes signal various cultures in its drape, colour tonalities, stitches.

Akshata Murty and Rishi Sunak

The plurality is also seen in the fabrics, silhouettes and in their design influences. 'Suzegad' has Mughal motifs; polo-neck blouses; the brand signature in Varanasi brocade is used in sarees and gharara sets, and aari embroidery is seen in the jackets some of which are quilted. The Goan narrative, however, makes its presence felt at all times in the collection. Standout items: a sheer organza and silk 'Tivim' saree with embroidered palla of floral medallions and all over floral butis; the 'Bondir' saree in joinery of sheer organza and silk with lotus motifs in sequins and zari, at times paired with a 'Majorda' blouse with a line of flowers outlining the form; the 'Talpona' sharara in Varanasi silk brocade features a scalloped jaal punctuated with meena. It is paired with a satin silk 'Vasco' blouse.

'All real in my head'

There is whimsy in the way Garg mixes facts with his fiction. He says with a laugh that it is all real in his head and the campaign flows from that. The fuschia 'Pedro pant' worn by a model in the campaign, refers to Pedro – he is just playing the character of a bridegroom, but he is Goan —"so that piece of clothing will be a Pedro pant forever", says Garg. It is also unusual how Garg thinks of colour; to him, Rani is a neutral shade. "I don't wear colour, but I am not scared of colour, I play with them," he says as if it is self-explanatory.

Shades of pink, coming as he does from Rajasthan, is naturally a favourite with Garg. It is also a shade that was the talk of town recently as the UK Prime Minister concluded his trip. In one of the photos shared by Rishi Sunak, Akshata Murty, the First Lady of the UK, was seen leaving India wearing a day saree, a Raw Mango blush pink organza silk saree, featuring gota and aari embroidered peacock motifs. Garg, who met her during the recent trip, says she reminded him of having met him 10 years ago. "She said she had bought a lot of handlooms and had said that 'I'm keeping it for my kids…'. And yes, we have got a lot of enquiries for the blush pink saree she wore," he says.

Evergreen Melodies

This musical tribute to legendary Bollywood composer R D Burman, to be held on Friday, is headlined by Burman's long-time collaborators

DESE GOWDA

Born into a family of musicians, legendary Hindi film composer Rahul Dev Burman was fondly referred to as Pancham. When he was younger, Burman's crying apparently sounded like the fifth note of music notation, hence the nickname. But as he got older, Pancham da, as he later came to be known among close associates, went on to revolutionise Hindi film music.

On Friday, a musical tribute to Burman, PanchGem Da, is being held at Chowdiah Memorial Hall and celebrates the evergreen music that Burman produced over a career spanning nearly two decades. Some of his close associates during the height of Burman's career are also part of the musical ensemble at the tribute event.

Every time drummer Franco Vaz, who started working with Burman in 1974, performs the latter's compositions, he feels a rush of nostalgia. "Each time it brings back memories. The numerous arguments that Pancham da would have with his fellow musicians while producing a song. It wasn't in a negative sense, but he would go through all the different opinions of other musicians, some of them renowned names, all in pursuit of the betterment of a song," says Vaz.

Having risen to popularity with his compositions for Kishore Kumar and Rajesh Khanna-starrer films, Burman also gave the industry iconic hits like Dum Maro Dum, and composed music for cult classics like Sholay and Gol Maal. "Burman is like aged wine. His music only gets better as it ages. Even today, when I go to recordings, I see his influence everywhere. And whenever I'm performing, I'm asked to play something that is reminiscent of Burman. So he continues to be influential in Bollywood even though he's not physically with us. His untimely passing was a huge loss," says 'Trumpet King' Kishore Sodha, another close collaborator of Burman.

Vaz agrees and points to the continued popularity of Burman's iconic hits. "The younger generation is actually well-versed with Burman's music. I see a lot of concerts that younger musicians do these days. While they play a lot of music from contemporary composers, they always end those concerts with Burman's songs. It's always Dum Maro Dum or Mehbooba Mehbooba," Vaz adds.

Introduced to Burman by Kishore Kumar, incidentally at an event at Lal Bagh, Sodha went on to become a permanent fixture in a majority of Burman's innovative and often radical compositions. "He was immensely creative. He would make so many changes to his compositions on the fly, as and when he had a new idea. He brought in so many influences to Hindi music, he had classical, folk, and especially western influences. He would listen to a lot of jazz music and he would incorporate a lot of those elements into his music. I had learnt immensely from him," he concludes.

('PanchGem Da' will be held on Sept 22, 6.30pm, at Chowdiah Memorial Hall, Malleswaram. Tickets are priced at ₹750 onwards. Details on bookmyshow.com)

ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT THE Nipah Virus

In the wake of the deaths in Kerala due to Nipah Virus, here is a guide about the infection which can range from mild flu-like symptoms to severe encephalitis

DR PAVAN YADAV

NIPAH Virus, often abbreviated as NiV, is a zoonotic virus that can cause severe illness in humans. It was first identified in Malaysia in 1999 during an outbreak among pig farmers and subsequently in Singapore. Nipah Virus belongs to the family Paramyxoviridae, genus Henipavirus. RNA virus is known to cause Nipah Virus infection, or Nipah Virus Disease (NiVD) in humans.

(The writer is lead consultant – interventional pulmonology & lung transplantation, Aster RV Hospital)

SERIOUSNESS OF DISEASE

- Nipah Virus infection can range from mild flu-like symptoms to severe encephalitis (inflammation of the brain), leading to a high mortality rate
- The seriousness of the disease depends on factors like the strain of the virus and the individual's immune response
- NiV outbreaks have led to fatalities in the past, making it a public health concern
- Nipah Virus is known for its relatively-high virulence, meaning it has the potential to cause severe disease in infected individuals

VIRULENCE

- Nipah Virus can cause a range of clinical presentations, from mild flu-like symptoms to severe encephalitis (inflammation of the brain)
- The case fatality rate (CFR) can vary depending on the outbreak strain and the level of medical care available, but it has been reported to be as high as 70 per cent in some outbreaks
- Severe cases often lead to respiratory distress and neurological complications, making it a highly concerning pathogen

PUBLIC HEALTH MEASURES

- Stay informed about the situation by following updates from trusted health authorities like the World Health Organization (WHO) and the Indian Ministry of Health and Family Welfare
- Pay attention to any travel advisories or restrictions issued by local health authorities

HEALTHCARE PREPAREDNESS

- Ensure that healthcare facilities in Bengaluru are prepared to handle any potential cases, with proper isolation and infection control protocols in place
- Advocate for healthcare workers to use appropriate personal protective equipment (PPE) when dealing with suspected cases

TRANSMISSION AND SPREAD

- Nipah Virus primarily spreads through direct contact with infected bats, pigs, or contaminated materials, like their urine or saliva
- Human-to-human transmission is also possible through close contact with infected individuals, especially in healthcare settings
- Consuming fruits contaminated by bat saliva or urine can also lead to infection

AT-RISK POPULATION

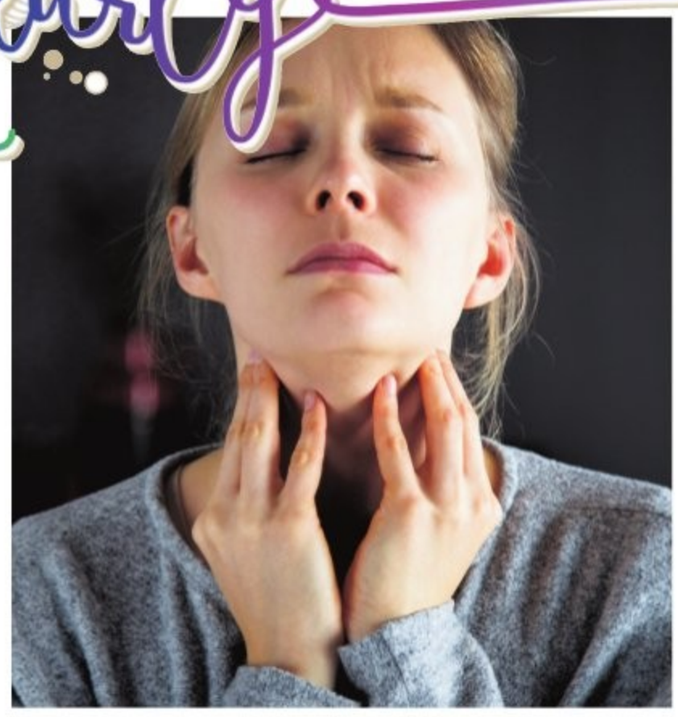
- People in close contact with infected animals, especially those involved in the pig farming industry, are at higher risk
- Healthcare workers caring for NiV-infected patients are also at risk due to potential nosocomial transmission
- Communities living in regions with known NiV outbreaks face a higher risk

PRECAUTIONS & PREVENTION

- Strict hygiene measures should be followed when handling animals, particularly pigs and bats
- Avoid drinking raw date palm sap, which can be contaminated with the virus
- Isolation and appropriate infection control measures in healthcare settings are crucial
- Use of personal protective equipment (PPE) is essential for healthcare workers
- Public health authorities conduct contact tracing and isolation of suspected cases during outbreaks

CONTAGIOUSNESS

- Nipah Virus is not as highly contagious as some other viruses like measles or the common cold
- In view of being less contagious the risk of Nipah spreading rapidly is lesser. The risk typically decreases with distance



Treatment for salivary gland tumours

EVER felt saliva gushing into your mouth at the mere thought of a piping hot biriyani or pickled mango? Saliva has an important role to play in our bodily functions. It cleanses the mouth; it initiates digestion, supplies minerals and has an antibacterial action.

The glands

The salival ducts originate from three pairs of major and several minor salivary glands. Major salivary glands – parotid gland, submandibular gland and sublingual gland – are situated on either side of the face, under the jaw and under the tongue, respectively. The minor salivary glands are peppered all around the mouth and throat. Swellings that arise in these glands are because of inflammation or a tumour. The treatment for the tumour is surgery.

Salivary gland tumours

Salivary gland tumours are found among smokers and alcoholics, individuals exposed to radiation and certain blue-collar professions such as workers who handle asbestos.

The tumour may present as facial weakness. The patient may experience difficulty opening the jaw and/or bleeding inside the mouth.

The tumours are categorised as benign or malignant, with a majority of them occurring in the parotid gland. Nearly 70% of swellings are benign whereas malignant tumours have an increased potential to recur and can spread.

The glands are near important nerves in the head and neck. The facial nerve lies within the parotid gland, separating it into superficial and deep parts. It is so intricate that it is often a challenge to identify and preserve all the branches of the nerve. The submandibular gland is close to a branch of the facial nerve and nerves supplying muscles of the tongue.

Assessment

The evaluation for a tumour involves radiological investigation and a histopathology test. However, none of these tests is a replacement for a clinical examination.

For example, a female patient presented with an ultrasound and biopsy report, which suggested a benign tumour that required only an adequate resection. After a discussion, the clinician suspected the tumour to be not innocent. An MRI and ultrasound-guided biopsy proved that the tumour was malignant.

Treatment

Frozen section is a method of pathology examination that gives results within 30 minutes. By this method, we can determine whether the tumour is benign or malignant and thus tailor the surgical clearance. Another patient, with multiple swellings in the parotid region, reported that he had been operated on twice previously for a benign disease. The recurrence would probably have been a result of incomplete removal or a breach in the tumour leading to seeding. The third frozen section reported it as a malignancy requiring a more extensive procedure.

The tumour rarely infiltrates the nerve and requires resection. Often with salvageable nerve stumps, it is possible to reconstruct the nerve by certain techniques. If such a reconstruction is not possible, facial reanimation techniques can be applied.

For example, a girl who unfortunately needed nerve resection along with the tumour was rehabilitated in the same sitting thanks to cable grafting the cut ends with a stump obtained from a nearby nerve. After surgery, she started physiotherapy and could regain the nerve functions within a year.

While surgery is the main treatment for salivary gland tumours, the patient may sometimes require the intervention of a radiation oncologist or medical oncologist.

Naveen Reddy's directorial, which stars Vinod Prabhakar as the lead and Kitty as the antagonist, will also feature the actor in a prominent role

A SHARADHAA

THE shooting of director Naveen Reddy's directorial Maadeva, starring Vinod Prabhakar as the lead and Kitty as the antagonist was recently completed, and the film was shot in just 80 days. Now it has come to light that this film, described as an inspirational story spanning different time periods (1965, 1980, and 1999), will also feature Malashree in a prominent role. While the details about her character are being kept under wraps, it is confirmed that the film will mark the return of the action queen to her territory as it has intense action sequences involving her.

Malashree, who was celebrated for her versatile roles, was equally famous for her action roles. Thriller Manju, who has choreographed the stunts for the actor, promises that her action scenes in the film will be a treat for her fans. Further information about her role will be unveiled in the coming days, along with details about other cast members.

Maadeva, produced by R Keshava under the Radhakrishna Pictures banner, features Vinod Prabhakar in the titular role and Sonal Monteiro as the female lead. This duo, who previously gained popularity with the Darshan starrer Robbert, are teaming up once again. The film also features Shruti, Achyuth Kumar, and Suddhi in pivotal roles.

The film has been shot in various locations across Karnataka and Hyderabad and is now in the post-production phase. Balakrishna Thota, a former assistant to Baahubali DOP Senthil Kumar, has handled the cinematography, while Praddyottan has composed the music for the film.

In addition to Maadeva, Vinod Prabhakar is eagerly anticipating the release of Fighter, which is expected to hit theatres in October.

CE FEATURES

RISHAB Shetty's Kantara, produced by Vijay Kiragandur of Hombale Films, is still riding high on a wave of accolades and honours.

Talking about winning major awards across various events in the country and abroad, Rishab Shetty said that this impressive haul of awards not only signifies the film's national recognition but also reflects the dedication and hard work of the entire team.

Rishab Shetty, who is currently engrossed in the pre-production phase of Kantara 2, adds, "The first set of awards comes from the audience, and these accolades serve as an energising fuel."

Reflecting on the camaraderie that is exemplified in such award ceremonies where stars from different industries come together, Rishab says, "We get to meet a diverse array of individuals, including technicians, actors, and senior filmmakers. I got to meet renowned personalities such as Kamal Haasan, director Mani Ratnam, Lokesh Kanagaraj, Gayathri Pushkar, SJ Suryah, and filmmakers from Telugu and Malayalam cinema."

As the accolades keep pouring in, the anticipation for Kantara 2 has also intensified. Rishab reveals that he and his talented team of writers, Aniruddh Mahesh and Shanil Guru, are currently fine-tuning the script. When asked about rumours of his weight loss, possibly for the prequel, he remains tight-lipped, promising to reveal details as the shooting schedule unfolds.

"Currently, the focus is on finalising locations and scouting for fresh faces, especially for the role of the heroine, who will hail from the Kannada film industry. Some actors from the original Kantara are also expected to join the prequel. We plan to commence shooting by the end of November or possibly in December," he says.

'I must credit the directors and producers who have placed their faith in me'

CE FEATURES

PRIYANKA Upendra's 50th film, Detective Teekshana, is gearing up for release, and the makers recently unveiled the film's trailer at an event graced by Realstar Upendra and other dignitaries. The film, helmed by director Trivikram Raghu, delves into a spine-tingling spate of murders and features Priyanka's as Teekshana in the heart of gripping action sequences.

At the trailer launch event, Upendra, with an air of joviality, remarked that the role of a detective is not confined to the silver screen alone; it permeates every household. With a chuckle, Uppi whimsically quipped, "As they say, every husband has a detective wife."

Speaking about the film, Uppi mentioned that the character of Detective Teekshana has been flawlessly crafted in every dimension, and the film is not just a visual delight but will strike a chord with its music. He added, "Priyanka has now achieved the monumental feat of 50 films, whereas I stand at 46. Here's to wishing her success with her 50th, and may it serve as a stepping stone toward her journey to a century of films."

Director Trivikram Raghu, sharing his sentiments, expressed his elation at having the privilege of directing Priyanka in her milestone film. "Priyanka's unwavering commitment has been a cornerstone of this project, and the entire team, from the artists to the technicians, has contributed their vivid imaginations to bring this thrilling tale to life."

With the film in post-production, Raghu revealed that the film will hit the screens in two months.

At the event, Priyanka said, "When I reflect upon the fact that I've had the privilege of acting in 50 films, I must credit the directors and producers who have placed their faith in me. I've always valued input from all quarters and made decisions with care. The character I portray in this film is mentally resilient, and I'm hopeful that this film will lay the foundation for an enthralling franchise."

Interestingly, the makers are preparing for a multilingual release strategy, spanning seven languages, including Kannada, Telugu, Tamil, Malayalam, Oriya, and Bengali.

Detective Teekshana features a musical score by P Rohith, and the cinematography is by Manu Dasappa.

'Laapataa Ladies is the kind of story that doesn't necessarily need stars'

Kiran Rao's sophomore film, Laapataa Ladies, recently had its world premiere at TIFF, and the filmmaker talks about the project, the delay between her directorials, and her train nostalgia

NAMRATA JOSHI

WRITER, director, and producer Kiran Rao's debut directorial, Dhobi Ghat was released in 2011. Her second film Laapataa Ladies aka Lost Ladies comes after 13 long years. It recently had its world premiere in the Centrepiece segment of TIFF and will be releasing worldwide on January 5, 2024.

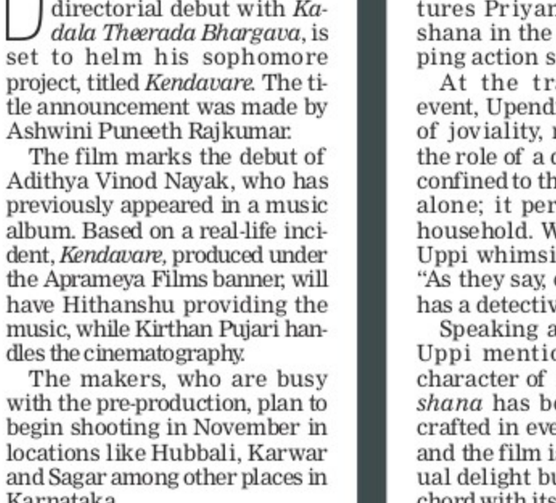
Laapataa Ladies is set in the year 2001 in a fictional Nirmal Pradesh but was shot in Madhya Pradesh. It is about two new brides—Phool and Jaya—who get swapped on the train in their very first, post-wedding journey from their 'maika' to the 'sasural'. A film about serious issues that are talked about with lightheartedness, Laapataa Ladies is a positive, hopeful, intelligent and entertaining story about two young women being able to find themselves after getting lost.

We spoke to Kiran Rao after the film's successful world premiere at TIFF.

Excerpts:

Why did it take so long for you to direct the second film?
It wasn't intentional. I've been working through these last 10-12 years on many things. My life has been very full and satisfying. I produced Secret Superstar and Laal Singh Chadha. Jio MAMI Mumbai Film Festival happened [she was the chairperson]. I've been, of course, a mom and have consistently been working on my own stories, and building scripts. I've got a couple of series that I'm developing.
The second film is always a little bit of a struggle. Honestly, when this [script] came along, I just knew instinctively that this was what I wanted to do. Of course, COVID played spoilsport.

Your two films belong to very different realities.
In Dhobi Ghat, I drew from personal experience, I drew from things that I knew, and stories that were close to my heart. The second film demands diving a little deeper and flexing your directorial muscle. How much more can you do instead of staying in your own safe storytelling world? I really felt like this was a great opportunity to do that because it's something that I personally could not have written. It's an incredible script starting with Biplab's [Goswami] story and then Sneha's [Desai] screenplay. Of course, the film draws again from personal experience, as you know, I have worked through [nonprofit organisation] Paani Foundation in the villages of Maharashtra. But it's a comedy. It has so much more happening that it was a big challenge for me.



Did the solid writing make direction somewhat easier for you?
When we got Biplab's script, the story itself was solid, a wonderful blueprint to start from, and then when we brought Sneha on board, we knew that we were going to change the tone of the film a little bit towards comedy. Sneha was absolutely the perfect writer for it because she has theatre training and can craft this lyrical dialogue which has a wonderful sawaal-jawaab (question-answer) kind of quality to it. We worked on what we wanted for each of these characters, what each of them stood for, creating these little micro worlds within the film, of the stations, the villages, the police stations. It was my job then to make it cinematic and cast it well.

How did you go about casting the wonderful ensemble?
When you know the story is so genuine and so honest, you really want a cast that would bring that tone of authenticity to the film. It's the kind of story that doesn't necessarily need stars. In fact, fresh actors, we felt, would bring believability. We wanted new faces, but also actors who had the skill set to do this tone of satire, drama, and comedy. We were looking for people who also spoke the right dialect. We were lucky to be able to cast genuinely wonderful actors, a lot of them from theatre, a lot of them local to Madhya Pradesh. There are only 2-3 veterans, like Ravi Kishan and Chhaya Kadam.

You are looking at so many social issues but are not shrill about them.
That was intentional because we wanted it to be a fun and exciting journey. You don't know what to expect around the corner. But, at the same time, we wanted to use humour as a vehicle to touch upon issues. You can approach the darkest of subjects and the most serious of issues in a lighter tone, which I feel has a far more profound impact. We didn't want monologues telling you what is right and what is wrong.

How crucial is music to you as a filmmaker and Ram Sampath's songs in this film?
Sound and music are half the film for me. Ram has such a deep understanding of storytelling through music. He also had the difficult job of working with somebody who'd never done songs in films before. The 4 songs were, for me, a completely new exercise.

Why locate it in 2001 specifically? And why shoot it in MP?
We did a little bit of research to check when the penetration of mobiles would have just about started in Tier 2 cities and villages, and 2001 seemed the right time when a mobile would be given in dowry. MP is truly one of the most spectacular states, geographically, and architecturally. Their infrastructure for shooting is also incredibly well set up and they were very supportive.

Lastly, the film takes us back to the romance of the train journeys. How much of an Indian Railways person are you?
All my first 20 years I didn't do anything but train journeys, especially going from Calcutta to Bangalore, where my grandmother was. The sights and sounds, the landscape that you pass, getting to know the people in your compartment, sharing food, sharing conversations. I have the fondest memories of travelling by the Indian Railways. There's a lot of nostalgia associated with trains.
